Taft-Hartley Law Invoked by Ike In Action To Halt Dock Walkout

'NO MYSTERY' AT 101. While Mrs. Mary Duce celebrates her 101st birthday in Los Angeles by reading a mystery story, reporters were prying into the mystery of her longevity. "An active life keeps you young," said Mrs. Duce, who declared she didn't necessarily need glasses while reading. Also, she "expects to be around for a long while yet."

Indians Fire On Prisoners To Quell Riot

Kill One, Wound Five After Outbreak by 500 Koreans in Compound

PANMUNJOM (AP) — One anti-Communist North Korean war prisoner was killed and five were wounded today when Indian guards opened fire during a screaming, rock-throwing demonstration in a compound and hospital, the Indian command announced tonight.

The U. N. Command, which announced the incident first, said six prisoners were wounded.

An Indian spokesman said several Indian officers and enlisted men were injured by rocks.

500 Take Part

The Indian command said about 500 North Koreans in custody of the Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission hurled stones and tried to scale a barbed wire fence while demonstrating against a visit by Polish and Czech commission members.

Indian Brig. Gen. V. M. Kaul said the demonstration began shortly after 11 a. m. and ended about noon. He said the Koreans quieted down after shots were fired.

Kaul said patients in the hospital "created disturbances" as five doctors from the commission entered for an inspection tour.

An Allied spokesman said earlier the demonstration began in the hospital.

Climb Fences

About 500 anti-Communist Korean prisoners in a compound adjacent to the hospital began climbing over the fence and throwing rocks, the spokesman said. He added that Indian troops then moved in and broke up the demonstration with guns and clubs.

"They killed one prisoner and wounded five others," he said.

A sixth prisoner was wounded later, so seriously that he may die, when the demonstration presumably broke out again, he reported.

The U. N. Command refused to say where it obtained its information but the spokesman said the report "is reliable."

The demonstration was the second by anti-Communist prisoners within a week. Chinese POWs seized an Indian major and held him hostage 1½ hours last Friday to protest the return of a Chinese captive to the Communists.

Draft Reply to Protest

The repatriation commission, meanwhile, put the finishing touches on an answer to a U. N. Command protest that it distributed an allegedly Communist - inspired letter to anti-Red POWs Saturday.

An Indian spokesman said the first draft of the letter—rejected by the commission—was somehow distributed to the POWs instead of a second approved version.

The U. N. Command said the letter was plainly pro-Communist and clearly emphasized that balky prisoners should return home rather than make a "free choice."

BACK IN WHITE HOUSE. Former President Herbert Hoover receives congratulations from President Eisenhower in the White House after oath-taking ceremonies for Hoover and his commission on reorganization of the executive branch of the government. The commission's goal is to merge or eliminate part of the 75 or 80 federal agencies which report to the White House.

3-Man Panel Named, Will Report Oct. 5

Strike Endangering Welfare of Nation, He Declares in Order

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower today invoked the Taft—Hartley law in a move to halt the paralyzing east coast dock strike.

He declared the strike imperils the nation's welfare and appointed a three-man board of inquiry headed by David L. Cole, former director of the Federal Conciliation and Mediation Service.

Eisenhower, in an executive order, directed the board to report to him by midnight Oct. 5.

Preliminary Steps

These are preliminary steps to seeking from the courts an order to stop the strike.

Once the chief executive receives the board's report, he can direct the Justice Department to ask a court injunction to halt the strike for 80 days while attempts are made to reach an agreement.

The President's executive order said the strike, which began early today, "will imperil the national health and safety" if permitted to continue.

Meanwhile, in New York longshoremen paralyzed east coast docks from Maine to Virginia.

"The ports are tied up completely from Portland, Me., to Hampton Roads, Va.," said a strike leader. "Nothing is loading."

Two huge liners managed to dock in New York despite the work stoppage that began at midnight.

Liberte Berths

The 51,840-ton French liner Liberte, 936 feet long, berthed with the guidance of one of her motor lifeboats. The 683-foot American liner Constitution, a 29,500 tonner, was aided by two motor launches in docking.

Tugboat crews as well as longshoremen were idle.

Many ships fled port before the strike deadline.

Sixty-eight vessels, among them the liners United States and Queen Elizabeth, churned out of New York harbor yesterday like a wartime convoy. About 25 or 30 ships ordinarily sail from here in one day.

Few Pickets on Duty

Pickets patroled outside major piers at the 8 a.m. "shape-up," or going to work hour, but some disbanded later when it became apparent the longshoremen did not intend to work.

At the usually bustling Hudson River piers, only small picketing teams gave outward evidence that the strike was on.

There were no reports of vio-

Senate Hails Earl Warren Appointment

Substantial Approval Expected; Governor Quits California Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — Substantial Senate approval was forecast today for President Eisenhower's appointment of Gov Earl Warren as chief justice of the United States.

When the court opens its fall term here Monday, the big, smiling California Republican will don the chief justice's robes.

Action Due in January

Barring an unforeseen special session of Congress, the Senate will not act at least until January, when the regular session begins. But a Senate judiciary subcommittee, headed by Sen. Langer (R-ND), already is geared to consider the Warren nomination informally and report to the full committee.

Full committee approval of the nomination, perhaps even in advance of the Senate's reconvening in January, was suggested by the reception given announcement of the appointment.

Democrats joined with Republicans in praising the selection. Adlai E. Stevenson, The Democrats' unsuccessful presidential nominee in 1952, said it was "an excellent appointment."

Sen. Kilgore (D-WVa), a member of the judiciary subcommittee, said he regards the California governor as "a fine man, very capable and very broadminded."

Burton Lauds Choice

Associate Justice Harold Burton, the only present Republican member of the court, said Warren "will make an admirable chief justice and I shall consider it a privilege to work with him."

Sen Ives (R-NY) said he could foresee no difficulty in obtaining Senate approval, despite reports that some Republicans of more conservative views were not highly pleased by the appointment.

Should the Senate reject Warren's nomination—a possibility that now seems highly remote—he would have to send another nomination to the senate

Warren will be the 14th chief justice and the second to take office on a recess appointment. The first so appointed was John Rutledge, who had served on the original court and was named chief justice by George Washington in 1795—only to have the nomination later rejected by the Senate after representations that Rutledge was mentally ill.

First From California

Warren will be the first chief justice from California.

Eisenhower told a White House news conference yesterday that ever since "my good friend," Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson, died of a heart attack Sept. 8, he had been searching for a successor.

In a rare gesture, the President permitted his remarks to be quoted directly

"I certainly wanted a man whose reputation for integrity, honesty, middle - of - the - road philosophy, experience in government, experience in the law, were all such as to convince the United States that

Work Stoppage Stays in Effect At Pollak Plant

Early End Expected as Both Firm and Union Declare It's No 'Strike'

Officials of the Pollak Steel Co. and the United Steel Workers Union scheduled another meeting today in an attempt to end a work stoppage at the Marion plant which neither regards as a strike.

The walkout began Tuesday afternoon and the plant has been idle since. Neither company nor union officials would comment on the cause, saying only it was touched off by a disagreement with a few people in one part of the plant.

Not Considered a Strike

William Bell of Mansfield, national representative of the United Steel Workers Union, said the work stoppage is "not a strike" as far as the international and local unions are concerned. The Marion union is Local 2721.

Bell attended a meeting here yesterday of company and union officials, and will be here this afternoon for another meeting, along with John S. Johns of Canton, district representative of the union, which is affiliated with the CIO.

Started by a Few Workers

Both Bell and Julian Pollak of Cincinnati, head of the firm, cited the Marion plant's long history of amiable union-plant relations in expressing confidence the work stoppage would soon be settled.

It apparently stemmed from a misunderstanding by a few Pollak

U.N. Awaiting New Russian Bid for Debate

UNITED NATIONS, N Y (AP)—United Nations delegates looked today for still more Communist maneuvers to reopen General Assembly debate on the Korean peace conference makeup.

The Assembly's Political Committee refused last night to take up Korea at once and instead put the question at the bottom of its seven-point work program.

Delegates freely predicted, however, that new calls would be coming from Communist China or North Korea in the wake of an Australian amendment, adopted over U. S. objections and providing that a simple majority vote of the committee would give the Korean debate priority if developments warranted.

As the committee members adjourned until next Wednesday, many of them expected new messages from the Asian Reds renewing demands for the inclusion of Asian neutrals in the Korean conference lineup. They figured any such Peiping-Pyongyang communications would give Soviet Delegate Andrei Y. Vishinsky the platform on which to say the debate had become necessary.

Vishinsky had warned early in yesterday's long wrangling that unless the conference makeup is settled, "there is a possibility the conference might not even meet." He also had termed the peace conference an urgent question, to which U. S. Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr later replied:

"If the Communists consider the peace conference an urgent matter, then let them get on with it. They can meet with the envoy we have offered to send to any one of three places (Geneva, San Francisco or Honolulu) to discuss the time and place for the conference."

Former Resident Of Marion Drowns

Word has been received here of the death by drowning Wednesday of Howard R. Wilson, 48, formerly of Marion, in the Tussaint River 10 miles west of Port Clinton. He fell from a boat while fishing, about 4 30 p.m. His home was at Fremont where he was employed as a landscaper.

Born June 10, 1905, in Marion, he was a son of Earl and Sabria Wilson He was a veteran of World War II. From 1949 to 1952, he lived in Bucyrus where his mother, now Mrs. Sabria Dartt, resides. She is his only close survivor.

Funeral services will be conducted Saturday at 1:30 p.m. in the Munz Funeral Home in Bucyrus. Rev. R. S. Stephens of the Bucyrus Church of Christ will officiate. Burial will be in Price Cemetery near Essex. Friends may call at the funeral home Friday night.

IKE NAMES ENVOYS

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower today chose Deputy Undersecretary of State H. Freeman Matthews to be ambassador to The Netherlands. He named Selden Chapin, former ambassador at the Hague, to be envoy to the Republic of Panama.

Begins Sunday

Fire Prevention Program Slated Here Next Week

A full program of activities for Marion area businesses, clubs, schools and individuals for Fire Prevention Week, starting Sunday and lasting through next Saturday, was outlined today by A. F. Busch of the Marion Chamber of Commerce.

The program includes checks of downtown business establishments Monday, the distribution of fire prevention literature, and talks stressing the importance of eliminating the causes of fires.

SEVERAL DOWNTOWN BUSINESSES will be given spot fire checks Monday as the kick-off to Fire Prevention Week. The merchants, whose stores will be inspected, will be chosen by a drawing in front of the courthouse at 10 a.m. Monday.

Making the drawing will be Fire Chief Owen Sifritt, Mayor Harold Robinson, Safety-Service Director Ralph Forrest, and Police Chief Tom Coon.

The names of from three to 12 stores will be drawn and referred to fire department officials who will inspect such things as rubbish storage and disposal, electrical wiring, heating systems, fire exits, blocked doors, and handling and storing of inflammible liquids. Also on the list of things which will be sought will be places provided for employees to smoke.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER has proclaimed the week of Oct. 4 to 10 as National Fire Prevention Week. Cities all over the country will try to take steps to inform the public of the need for care in handling fire.

Mayor Robinson has also issued a proclamation designating next week as Fire Prevention Week in Marion and directing all agencies of city government to assist in "arousing the public to the seriousness of the fire problem."

The proclamation urges citizens to help eliminate causes of fire in

Revised Ohio General Code Begins Today

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio gets a new set of laws today.

More than 100 enactments of the recent Legislature swing into operation today and tomorrow. Others already are in effect.

It cost about $350,000 and took seven years to do it, but now Ohio is governed by a streamlined set of statutes.

The old general code is no more. Its 24,000 sections are now whittled down to 19,000.

When the revised code came into being at midnight, it signaled the beginning of a series of effective dates for most of the 298 laws passed by the Legislature this year.

Two major creations of the General Assembly draw their first breath today and tomorrow — the controversial axle - mile tax on trucks and the new state department of highway safety.

The highway safety department, which begins work tomorrow under U. C. Felty, former State Highway Patrol official, incorporates the patrol and the state motor vehicles bureau. Both used to be in the highway department.

Congressmen Sensitive

Ike's Remarks on Taxes Start Fresh Speculation

WASHINGTON (AP)—Several congressional Democrats opened fire today against any Eisenhower administration proposal for a national sales or excise tax at the manufacturers' level.

In the wake of President Eisenhower's news conference yesterday, they decried such a tax, using adjectives like "dangerous" and "burdensome" and "discriminatory."

They said the man in the street probably would find himself harder hit by a manufacturer-level tax than by a retail-level tax. A tax on sales at the factory, they argued, would pyramid prices on consumer goods.

Okays Direct Quotes

The President, obviously aiming a squelch at speculation about a retail sales tax, took the unusual step of authorizing some of his news conference remarks for direct quotation.

"For years," the President said, "I think I personally have put my adverse conclusions on such a tax so far as the federal government is concerned. . . ."

"The Treasury Department has made a study, however, and they find that all of the logic in the situation is that this is a field that belongs to local municipalities and not to the federal government, and certainly, therefore, they have no intention of trying to do otherwise."

Stirs More Speculation

That part of Eisenhower's statement drew a round of general applause from members of Congress. But Democratic objections arose to his news conference replies, not authorized for direct quotation, in which he declined to rule out a sales tax at the manufacturers' level.

Eisenhower's reply that he did not eliminate anything, and that

Stevenson, Ike Meet To Talk Of World Trip

Democrat To Give Views on Global Relations at Session

WASHINGTON (AP) — Adlai E. Stevenson, dropping politics temporarily but denying Republican assertions that he talks appeasement, reports to President Eisenhower today on world conditions as he found them on a 4½-month tour.

The 1952 Democratic presidential nominee said he was ready to answer any questions he could about his conversations with most of the free world's top diplomats.

Private Talk Arranged

Eisenhower, who invited Stevenson to the White House, arranged to talk with him privately for half an hour and then hold a stag luncheon in his honor. Sixteen government officials likely to be interested in Stevenson's report were invited—among them Secretary of State Dulles, Secretary of Defense Wilson, Director Allen Dulles of the Central Intelligence Agency and Foreign Operations Administrator Harold Stassen.

Stevenson flew in from Chicago yesterday voicing confidence about the future of the Democratic party. He said it is "alive and kicking as never before."

Denies Accusations

At a news conference, he denied accusations by some Republicans that he was guilty of advocating appeasement in his Sept. 15 Chicago speech. He urged then that the United States fix its sights "high again" and to be ready to confer with Soviet Russia on disarmament and other problems

"I think anybody who reads my speech thoroughly would not detect any implications of appeasement," he said.

He said he is carrying a personal message from a foreign statesman to the President. He wouldn't say who sent the message, but reporters guessed it might be Prime Minister Churchill of Great Britain

Churchill has been plugging for a meeting of the heads of state of this country, Britain, France and Russia.

Ransom Move By Kidnapers Seen Possible

Big Burst of Activity Noted at Kansas City Home of Stolen Boy, 6

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Renewed activity at the home of the wealthy parents of 6-year-old Bobby Greenlease gave rise today to the possibility of a ransom by his kidnapers after a puzzling day of silence.

The activity began after dusk, following a day in which no one was seen to leave or enter the big home on Kansas City's fashionable South Side.

Several cars were seen to come and go at the home after dark. But even as this activity developed the family and police tightened their silence.

Police insisted no new clues had been uncovered. A spokesman for the family said nothing had happened which might lead to the boy, abducted three days ago from a private Catholic school by a woman posing as the child's aunt.

The mystery was increased by use of the back door at the family home by several persons. Until last night the family had been using only the front entrance.

Once shortly after midnight three shirt-sleeved men emerged from the back door and talked briefly before re-entering the house.

Throughout yesterday the home had been closed to visitors. But business associates of the multi-millionaire father, Robert C. Greenlease, stood by to offer whatever help might be needed should the 71-year-old automobile dealer have to rendezvous with the kidnaper.

The father has announced he is ready to go to any length to get his son back. He has arranged to get currency at any hour to meet ransom demands.

As the hours passed, friends of

Early Pranks Draw Warning By Police Chief

A warning was issued today to Marion teen-agers who are rushing the Halloween season by Police Chief Tom Coon.

Two instances of Halloween activities have been reported to police, he said. In one case, pranksters tore up lawn furniture and cut down clothes lines, he said. Four junior high school boys have been ordered to appear before the police department juvenile officer Virgil Campbell.

A potentially more dangerous "prank" was reported to police last night. Some youths had placed a rope across a street and acted as though they intended to stretch it tightly across the street, a few feet high. This caused a passing motorist to make an emergency stop and could have caused an accident had another car been following closely, Coon said. The boys involved in this prank were "taken care of" by their parents, he added.

Warning that each Halloween prank resulting in property damage will be investigated and the responsible parties hailed into court, he added that property damage absolutely will not be tolerated in Marion this year.

There is a point where fun ends, and property damage begins and it's at that point the Halloweeners must stop their activities, he warned.

Former Egyptian Premier Sentenced

CAIRO (AP)—Egypt's special revolutionary court today sentenced former Premier Ibrahim Abdel Hadi and an Egyptian formerly employed by the British to hang on charges of treason and plotting with an unidentified foreign power to restore ex-King Farouk to the throne.

Hadi, 57-year-old Saadist party leader, was sentenced after a three day trial. The hearing for the second defendant, Ahmad Mohamed Awad, lasted two hours and was held in secret after the sentencing of Hadi.

Awad, an electrician, formerly was employed by the British garrison which Egypt wants to expel from the Suez Canal Zone.

They were the first of some 24 persons scheduled to be arraigned by the special tribunal on similar charges.

Refund of Tax Possible After Court's Action

Marion County taxpayers may share a $24,436 refund plum in the near future as a result of a ruling yesterday by the Ohio Supreme Court.

The Scioto-Sandusky Conservancy District, which includes Marion and 16 other counties, lost its fight against a ruling made by the court last summer. That ruling sustained Delaware and Union County auditors in their refusal to collect a three-tenth mill levy for conservancy use.

In its action yesterday the court refused a rehearing on its original decision that assessments levied by the district for conservancy work were taxes and that they therefor needed approval of the voters.

The court's refusal cleared the way for a refund to property owners in the district who have already paid the tax. It was collected in Marion County and most of

Butter Bean Clogs Safety Valve, Blast Damages Kitchen

ATLANTA (AP) — A butterbean clogged the safety valve of Mrs. Ethel Ray's steam pressure cooker yesterday—and here's what happened:

The cooker exploded and blew the lid through the kitchen ceiling.

The hot water heater, 12 feet from the stove, hopped of its moorings. Bottles on a shelf flew in all directions.

Flames in the gas stove flared six feet high.

Food was sprayed all over the newly painted kitchen walls.

A stove leg punched a hole in the floor.

Mrs. Ray was hurled to the floor on her face. She was later treated for bruises.

Reds Increase Air Power in Far East

TOKYO (AP)—Gen. O. P. Weyland, commander of the U. S. Far East Air Forces, said today the Russian, Chinese and North Korean air forces in the Far East have about twice as many tactical planes available as the United Nations.

In an interview with John Rich of the National Broadcasting Co. Weyland said he could not give precise figures foreither the Communists or the Allies.

Weyland said recent strengthening of the Russian air force in Russian-held islands and in Siberia, "when taken in conjunction with USSR atomic and hydrogen weapon capabilities, is considered highly significant."

2 Pittsburgh Children Give Police Headache

PITTSBURGH (AP)—When Wayne Kline a pint-sized 9-year-old, and his 6-year old sister Connie went for a stroll near their home last night, they gave police and firemen a king sized headache.

They started climbing up a 100-foot cliff Halfway up they got stuck on a ledge Two policemen, Joseph Eckle and Pete Kaminski spotted them and started climbing Kaminski got stuck too His partner, Eckle, called firemen, who lowered a rope and got all three down safely

As officers grimly warned the tots against future climbing, Wayne commented

A Week for Freedom

There is one handicap on newspapers when the time comes each year to observe Newspaper Week.

It is difficult for newspapermen to talk about their own work. But there is one way they can make the handicap of their modesty easier to bear.

That is to remember that the purpose of Newspaper Week—from Oct. 1 to Oct. 8 this year—is to remind the general public about the connection between the American way of life prescribed in the Constitution and the American press.

There is nothing immodest about this. The connection was established by the first amendment to the Constitution:

"Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grievances."

The right of the American people to worship as they please, to say what they think and to have access to news uncolored by government censorship has been inalienable since the Bill of Rights went into effect in 1791.

Freedom of the press was guaranteed to all the people of the United States, not just to newspapers, nor to people who work for newspapers.

All that newspapers and their employes have to do with the historic pronouncement in the Bill of Rights is to bring its significance to attention often enough to keep it from being forgotten.

This is the primary purpose of Newspaper Week.

A free press, like the principle of freedom itself, cannot exist without an understanding of its function. It must be preserved by eternal vigilance and strengthened by systematic use.

Above all it must be made as meaningful to each new generation of Americans as it was made to the founders of the republic in the 18th century. They knew that without it there could be no freedom; freedom that to read and to print belonged in the same category with the right to worship, to assemble and to petition their government for redress of grievances.

Distinguished Company

Earl Warren of California will be accepted easily and enthusiastically in the post of chief justice of the United States. President Eisenhower could wish all his appointments to high office might be as obvious and as popular.

The governor of California has what some chief justices and many associate justices have lacked — broad legal experience. His policy views coincide with the views of President Eisenhower, a fact which once was controversial when mentioned in connection with judicial appointments. It is not controversial any longer because everybody knws now that the Supreme Court does follow the election returns, just as "Mister Dooley" said it did.

Gov. Warren's close identity with the Pacific coast in politics is also in his favor. It is as obvious in the affairs of government as it is in the affairs of big - league baseball that the United States no longer can ignore the size and dynamic energy of its West Coast population.

Gov Warren will be only the seventh American to serve as chief justice of the United States in this century. He will be a worthy addition to a distinguished company: Melville Fuller, Edward D. White, William Howard Taft, Charles Evans Hughes, Harlan F. Stone and Fred M Vinson. Since he comes to the highest bench at the age of 62, it may be his good fortune to preside over the Supreme Court for many years to come.

How Thoughtless Can You Be?

Nothing that travels on the highway is any easier to spot than those big yellow school buses.

They were painted that way so no motorist could possibly fail to see them.

They carry America's most precious cargo—its children.

Nothing is too much trouble to keep the children alive—nothing. Every motorist who comes within sight of a school bus is expected to observe special caution.

He must stop when the school bus stops and not start until it starts. He must do this whether the bus is going or coming.

This stopping and starting is not optional. It is mandatory. It is the law.

Yet, there are motorists so thoughtless they try to cheat at the risk of killing children who are getting on and off school buses.

Anyone who would do that has hit bottom. He has skidded so far down the scale of human value that he would trade the life of a child for an extra few seconds of his own time and live in remorse the rest of his life.

This is only the beginning of another school year. For the next eight months, school buses and school children have the highest priority there is.

Don't challenge it! Don't cheat when the forfeit would be a child's life!

Truman Out of Step?

By David Lawrence

New York Speech Suggestive of Anti-Americanism

Is the Democratic party going to become known as the anti-American party—the party that puts the interests and claims of European and Asian nations above those of the United States?

Former President Truman may not have intended to convey that impression, but the speech he delivered in New York City on Monday—if it can be taken as an official expression of Democratic party doctine—certainly contains a good deal of criticism of his fellow Americans and not a word of criticism of the so-called allies who have deserted the moral principles they once held and who now ask America to yield those principles.

Mr. Truman attacked what he calls the "isolationists" of today and says they are no different from the "die-hard isolationists of 12 years ago" but he hasn't a word of criticism against the various governments of the world that left the United States virtually isolated in the Korean war while they pursued their trade with the enemy in such strategic goods as rubber.

"Isolationism" has been rightly condemned again and again in America as an extreme doctrine of indifference to world cooperation, but Mr. Truman must know that no considerable group of citizens feels that way about international policies today.

The current criticism is that America isn't getting the cooperation it deserves because of the selfishness of other governments.

What he doesn't realize is that there is arising in America—and also inside the Democratic party—a sentiment that official Washington must not give away its billions in aid to Europe and at the same time find itself isolated when a war like that in Korea breaks out.

If the former president wants to know the name of some real Americans who happen to be members of the Democratic party and have criticized our allies severely, he might refer to some recent statements by Sen. George about foreign aid and by Lyndon Johnson, the leader of the Democratic party in the Senate.

If Mr. Truman cares to look it up, he will find that Democrats almost to a man supported the resolution adopted in the last Congress warning the United Nations members that the government of Red China must not be admitted to the Security Council.

If Mr. Truman, who appears to be so bitter against what he calls the "investigating frenzy" on the part of congressional committees, wants to discover the basic cause of it all, he need only examine the record of his own administration toward Alger Hiss and other Communists who held high places inside the government of the United States.

If Mr. Truman will send for a copy of a recent report from the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee concerning subversion inside our government, he will find that, on November 28, 1945, the FBI sent a comprehensive memorandum to the White House and to top officials naming certain persons highly placed in the government as Communists and as agents of Soviet Russia.

Mr. Truman did nothing about that FBI report until the House committee on un-American Activities three years later caught Hiss in a lie concerning his Communist connections.

Mr. Truman will recall that he characterized the work of the House committee then as a "red herring."

In this connection, Attorney General Brownell said on September 5 to a convention of the American Veterans of World War II:

"As attorney general, I have dedicated myself and the Department of Justice to use every legal weapon to expose and punish the conspirators in this great deception.

"Fortunately, the FBI, that most respected unit of our government, has been working hard over the years in its investigation of Communism. Unfortunately, much of what the FBI uncovered, gathered dust in the Department of Justice files.

"Now, the dust is being removed and lawyers in the criminal division are working long hours each day to bring actions against those who would destroy us."

Thus the Truman administration by its neglect of the issue brought about so-called "McCarthyism"—a spectacular campaign to awaken the American people to the insidious operations of Communists and their henchmen in the government, the press, the clergy, the colleges, and the scientific world.

What is even worse, the failure by a so-called "liberal" administration to act caused many unthinking persons unjustly to associate sincere liberals and socialists with Soviet conspirators.

To this day the repeated attacks by Trumanites on those who are anti-Communist is rarely accompanied by any such vehement criticism of the Communists who have been infiltrating the institutions of various countries of the world, including the United States.

A Loaf of Bread

By TRUMAN TWILL

An old acquaintance with whose culinary skill our family had had previous pleasant acquaintance came by the office the other day to leave a loaf of home - made bread with her compliments.

She had read some remarks about the bread situation in this column and mixed up a little extra dough when she kneaded the makings for the next baking. Her good-will offering created a stir on the Twillery table.

It is not that the inmates have not been eating bread with enjoyment. It is only that the inmates have had no chance in recent years to sample the goodness of home-made bread.

The loaf was rectangular—about 6 by 10 and close to 10 inches deep, with a fat hangover where it lopped out of the pan. Its crust was a rich brown—and firm.

There was no chance to weigh the loaf, but it was noticeably heavy for its size. That is the vital characteristic of home-made bread—that it has more substance to it than bread which is mass-produced for the commercial trade.

It can be remunated over. It does not sag and collapse under a load of jelly. When it is put into the toaster it does not curl up and turn into a cinder. If the butter is stiff, the bread can withstand the spreading.

It is the kind that our mothers used to turn out of the bread pans on baking day — rows of golden-crusted beauties set out to cool in a not-too-drafty place in the kitchen. It is the kind whose aroma used to carry a block on a still afternoon and set the nose of a hungry kid twitching with anticipation.

With a dollop of sweet butter and a couple tablespoons of brown sugar on top, a feast fit for the gods on Olympus could be fashioned.

It was as good as cake—even better.

In an earlier time when economic circumstances separated the men from the boys at an early age, bread like that made into meat and jelly sandwiches for dinner pails built a civilization. A homemaker was known for the bread she baked; that was the supreme test of her devotion to the housewifely arts.

Obviously, home - made bread was a lot of trouble. The right flour, the right yeast and the right oven temperature had to be combined by a master hand. It was a blessing when bakers took over the job and distributed their handiwork via bakery wagons. It was a blessing when bread became impersonal—another item on the shopping list at the supermarket.

Women's hands have been freed for more useful work, no doubt about it. But what is remarkable is that so many women whose hands have been freed are finding time to fashion the staff of life again and to recapture some of the credit which used to redound to the bread-maker.

There was a special kind of pleasure in the home-slicing of that fine loaf of home-made bread. In the old days, the highest tribute to the breadmaker was a thick slice. In its best form, bread once was eaten in hunks, not slices.

Some of the slices got pretty thick during the two meals that loaf lasted at our house. With all due credit to the bakers, if they could make their product disappear at that rate, the United States could quit worrying about a wheat surplus.

Your Newspaper Lights Freedom's Way

I am your newspaper.

I bring to you every day the current history of the past 24 hours—in type and pictures.

I first saw the light of day in the days of Julius Caesar. Then I was a tablet. My job was to inform the people about market transactions, about the success of Caesar's legions, and about debates in the Roman Senate.

In those days I had a rather clumsy appearance. There was nothing about me then that would in the slightest compare to the streamlined form in which I appear today.

Gutenberg helped bring that about in 1440 with his invention of movable type. From then on my progress was rapid.

Man invented stereotyping mats, the typesetting machine, flat and cylindrical presses. All of this improved my appearance and made me more acceptable and indispensable.

I have always maintained, however, that my format does not matter too much. What does count are the essential functions I perform.

I have always tried to inform, instruct, entertain, and to serve as the go-between for those who have something to sell and those who wish to purchase.

There were lots of folks — dictators and such — who suppressed me to further their own ends, but not for long, as history measures time.

I really started to flourish toward the end of the 18th century, when a group of people on the North American continent established the United States with its Constitution and Bill of Rights, the First Amendment of which guarantees freedom of the press. That amendment irrevocably fixed the right of free speech and maintenance of a free press as a firm policy in the American Government.

Those founders of the American Republic wanted all of their people in their land to be kept informed of what was going on. This helped me much.

In those days we had no wire services. Photograpy had not yet made its appearance. A publisher had his hands full merely setting the type and getting me into the hands of his subscribers.

Man and his technical skill changed that gradually until today I come to you either in standard or tabloid size, with type neatly arranged to please the eye with headlines and subheads quickly telling of the news, and advertisements carrying the messages of merchandisers.

Today, my pages reflect happiness and sorrow, tragedy and joy.

I record births and deaths.

On my pages you will find recorded the doings of folks of every walk of life.

You will see me championing the cause of the rights of individuals, of religious freedom, of good government, and of all the other causes which help to promote the general welfare of the citizen and the community.

I reflect views and opinions of all people. I respect and honor those views and opinions.

Eliminate me from the daily scheme of things and what is left? How will the people be kept informed?

Can you think of a substitute for me?

Would you like to sit in front of your radio, or television set morning, noon and night to learn what is happening all around you?

Are you satisfied with the brief news messages that a radio or television set can give?

Circulation figures prove otherwise. Each day during 1952 over 55 million daily newspapers were sold, not to mention the additional millions which subscribe to weekly newspapers.

How could people be kept informed about merchandise for sale in department and other stores without the newspaper? How would a man or woman find a job without a newspaper, or an employer suitable help?

How could they make comparisons of values, prices, styles?

I can be picked up and read at the convenience of the reader. I can be carried around. With me a reader has an opportunity to read what he wants, when he wants, and as hurriedly or as leisurely as he desires.

The message I carry is there for all to see at any time.

My reader does not have to keep his ears glued to radio or television to be kept informed. I do that for him, and in detail.

My reader does not have to be anywhere at a specific time to read me. He can read me at his convenience.

I am the reader's constant companion, available at is beck and call at almost any corner store, at railroad or bus depots, at airports, in libraries, schools. I also come delivered to the residence.

Take me away, and what will take my place?

I have also the duty to educate. I do that in a variety of ways. In my pages folks can find doings of their churches. I tell them of the sermons given on Sundays.

I tell of labor-saving devices. I report on the discovery of the cause of diseases or a new serum to cure or prevent them. I tell of research, social, economic, scientific or technical matters.

I tell about the care of babies. I follow the national, state and local political trends and try to tell what they mean.

I tell about agreements we make with foreign countries. I tell about the job your elected representatives are doing in Washington or elsewhere.

I condemn corruption, expose wrong-doing, demand respect for law and stand firmly for its enforcement.

I cannot long survive if I prove neglectful, indolent or faithless, for then I will soon lose the public's confidence. Without that confidence I would soon cease to exist.

Another job I have is to bring entertainment to my readers.

I tell them about their favorite sports.

I show them how to use their leisure time to better advantage.

I give them news of the theater, of motion pictures, and of circuses.

I tell about concerts and other musical entertainments, and give radio and television program listings.

I tell about hobbies, about hunting, fishing, automobile touring, canoeing, sailing, card games, chess.

I talk about books and antiques, amateur photograpy, stamp collecting, and aviation.

I tell about travel, what to wear, how to go, how to get there.

I tell about football games, basketball games, baseball games, and give news of boxing and wrestling, and bowling, and other sports.

On my pages are reflected the daily entertainment and sport happenings which interest most of the people.

Time has proven me to be the best friend of those who have something to sell and of those who want products to buy.

Without me the national economy would not be what it is today.

I make a contribution to progress. I glory in the fact that in this country we are the best clothed, best fed, best sheltered, most traveled people anywhere on the face of the earth; that we have more bathtubs, more telephones, more automobiles and more of almost anything else than any other people, anywhere, at any time, ever had.

Advertising is information. It is information about merchandize, services, or ideas and inventions of people who pay to have such information published and disseminated.

The other day in discussing what the world would be like if "The Last Advertisement Was Printed Yesterday," the White Plains (N.Y.) Reporter Dispatch said:

-:-

"Advertising has brought us many things. Finer cars, better homes, silly fads and wonderful inventions that have made life easier — and longer. Advertising is no unmixed blessing. But it has helped give America a standard of living unmatched in any other place and time. That standard of living should persist as long as people have wants to fill and money to spend and eyes to read with.

"It will persist only so long as the presses keep rolling."

That spells it out, doesn't it?

As I see it the written word will continue to be man's chief means of communication.

I am not perfect. I have never been perfect, any more than a mere human being, or life itself, can be perfect.

Measured by all standards, the most I — your newspaper — can hope to accomplish is to constantly and relentlessly improve my coverage, my scope, and my services to my community and to my country.

(Look, are those Yankee Pitchers right?)
War 'twixt the slave world and the free!
(What is the shape of Mantle's knee?)

The question in this World Series, as we see it is this: Will it be better under Eisenhower than it was under Truman and Roosevelt?

The Democrats did pretty well with it, but the policy was distinctly pro-Yankee Stadium.

A victory for "Dem Bums" would support the Republicans' claims that things have been too one-sided under the Democratic administrations and that the slogan "It's time for a change," is not just a figure of speech.

We await the full effect of the series on the stock market, the U. N. debates, the economic situation, NATO, Trieste, Egypt, Mossadegh, the East Germany situation and Grunewald, "The Dutchman."

We think it will cut them all down to size.

Until it is all over Malenkov and Vishinsky will be definitely benched for Campanella and Yogi Berra; Chou En-lai and Beria will be eclipsed by Hodges and Johnny Mize, and nothing that is done in Korea, Indochina, Yugoslavia or Yonkers can command interest over what is done by Duke Snyder.

Dedication Event At Hornell Honors Former Marionite

Dedication ceremony for the Hornell N. Y, freight yards of the Erie Railroad was held Wednesday when the yard was renamed Woodruff Yard in honor of a former Marion man and ex president of the Erie, Robert E Woodruff

The dedication followed the recent completion of a new $1,000-000 westbound classification yard at Woodruff Yard

Paul W Johnston, Erie president, made the dedication address, as a granite pilar bearing a bronze tablet was unveiled The dedication was a complete surprise to Mr Woodruff, who went to Hornell with other Erie officials to participate in the Board of Trade and Industrial Day

Mr Woodruff was made chairman of the board of trade and industry in 1949 He started with the Erie as a track laborer in Youngstown in 1905 and rose to president of the railroad in 1941 He was stationed in Marion while he served as superintendent of division He later served as manager of the Hornell region, at two different times

The dedication marked the completion of the first phase of yard modernization plans brought about by the Erie's $80 000,000 Dieselization program The yard was built at the cost of nearly $1 million to reduce time cars spend in the yards The new yard can accommodate 1 868 cars on its 16 tracks, the longest holding 156 cars The entire Woodruff Yard, including the eastbound yard and other smaller freight tracks, now has a capacity of 4,713 freight cars.

Dallas Woman Slain, Citizens Seek Attacker

Killing Culminates Series of Beatings, Assaults on Women

DALLAS, Tex (AP)—A posse of about 400 angry Dallas residents, incensed by a series of attacks on white women by a nude Negro prowler, helped harried police today in a search for the killer of a young mother.

The rape-slaying last night of Mrs. H. C. Parker, 29, attractive blonde dime store clerk, climaxed a series of beatings and rapes on white women by a prowler who has terrified Dallas for months.

Police said Mrs. Parker was literally "cut to pieces." Her throat was slashed deeply.

Action Pays Off

Although the reinforced police patrols and the angry citizens searched through the night in vain for the killer, police felt the extra patrols in the crowded business-residential area around Lemmon Avenue and Reverchon park paid off early today.

An elderly woman was thrown to the ground by a white man in what police called a robbery attempt. The woman's screams attracted nearby plainclothesmen and the assailant was arrested on the spot. Police Sgt. Tom Ellis said he did not believe the man arrested had anything to do with Mrs. Parker's death.

The second attack occurred within blocks of the place where Mrs. Parker was attacked on busy Lemmon avenue, thoroughfare leading to Dallas' Municipal Airport from downtown.

Citizens Panicky

As police received scores of calls from panicky citizens each night, Police Chief Carl Hansson warned citizens to be careful of their aim. Husbands dug old six-shooters and Army weapons out of trunks and closets. Women slept fitfully with lights on and rifles by their beds. Bird guns were loaded with buckshot.

Gave Few Details

Mrs. Parker gave scant details of the attack before she died enroute to a hospital.

She had finished work at 9 p. m. at a dime store in the Walnut Hills shopping center not far from the Dallas municipal airport. While she was waiting for her bus, she told police, a Negro grabbed her and forced her under a bridge. There he attacked and repeatedly clubbed her. She dragged herself up the embankment to the street, where she collapsed. A passing motorist found her, took her to the airport and called police.

Officers W. M. McGee and J. W. Gallagher said Mrs. Parker described her assailant as a stocky Negro dressed in a white T-shirt and khaki trousers. Hospital attendants confirmed that she was raped.

Early Tuesday morning, 16 squads of patrolmen and detectives had tramped through Reverchon Park following an appearance of the nude prowler, who sometimes wears striped shorts, at other times appears in bedrooms naked.

Mrs. R. T. Griffin, night nurse at Bradford Memorial Hospital, said she was in the office at the front of the building and saw the prowler looking in the window. A porch light, she said, revealed that he was unclothed.

"I screamed and the man ran," she said.

Others See Man

Other nurses said they saw the man at the side of the building later.

Tuesday night, a 20-year-old stenographer told newsmen she looked up from writing a letter to see a man looking into her window. She ran into another room for her stepfather and he escaped.

Dallas has had 18 rapes of white women by Negroes in 18 months. A few weeks ago the rapes increased to three in as many weeks. Several times the nude prowler has been scared away. A week ago, a resident of the Reverchon Park area drove him off with his fists as the man attempted to enter the front door of his home. Another man entered his bedroom to find his wife being raped by the prowler. He was cut by the knife-wielding attacker.

Chief Justice

here was a man who had no ends to serve except the United States . . .

"To my mind he is a man who will make a great chief justice, and so I selected him."

In Sacramento, Calif., the 62-old nominee announced he was accepting the appointment, would resign as governor as of midnight Sunday and be on hand here Monday to take the oath of office.

Preparing to turn over the governorship to Lt. Gov. Goodwin J. Knight, Warren said:

"To be a member of this high court, and as such an interpreter and defender of the Constitution for all the people of the United States is the greatest obligation that could be assumed by any lawyer.

"I will apply myself to the task with the very best that is in me and will compensate for any limitation with industry and faithfulness to the cause of constitutional government in America."

the other counties of the district.

Marion County Auditor Maurice Clements today set the amount collected here at $24,436.29. It was placed on the first-half, tax collection for 1952.

When the district announced plans for asking the added taxes, Delaware and Union County led the fight against it and refused to collect it on the ground it was unconstitutional to do so, winning their fight in court.

Clements said one county in the district had collected the taxes and the money had been turned over to the Scioto-Sandusky District. The money collected in Marion County has been held here pending outcome of the County.

Clements indicated no plan had been devised for refunding the money. He said his office had received no instructions on the procedure to be used in making any refunds and none will be made until the proper authority for such action is received. He said the auditors in the district may have to wait for a ruling by Attorney-General C. William O'Neill.

Returned POW To Be Honored At Upper Game

Special to The Star

UPPER SANDUSKY — Pfc. Thomas Swinehart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale F. Swinehart, of near here, and an Upper Sandusky High School graduate, will be a guest of honor Friday night at the Upper Sandusky - Bellevue football game on the high school athletic field here.

Recently returned from a POW camp in Korea, Pfc. Swinehart will be recognized in a brief half-time ceremony conducted by the Upper Sandusky American Legion and VFW posts. Thomas and his parents will be guests of the high school athletic association for the game.

The only Wyandot County man to be returned in the recent prisoner exchange, Thomas had been a captive for ten months and was listed as missing in action during that period. While a prisoner, he made several attempts to send mail to his parents but they did not receive any of his letters, or any other word of his capture until he was released. Neither did Thomas receive any mail from his parents, or anyone else, during all the time he was held in North Korea.

He arrived in San Francisco on Sept. 20 and was met by his parents at Columbus airport early on the morning of Saturday, Sept. 26. Now on leave at his home here, he is to report to Wright-Patterson Field, Dayton, by Oct. 15 for a physical checkup and further orders. He is confident the order will include a furlough before assignment to a base in the United States.

He was inducted for a two-year term in February, 1952 and was captured, Oct. 31, while on a front line "listening post."

While a prisoner, Thomas was frequently questioned and was many times threatened, but he was not beaten nor brutally treated at any time. Rice and fish were the main articles of diet in the camp where he was held and while the food was not too good, he remained in good health.

Kidnaping

Greenlease expressed concern for his health. The strain, they reported, has grown intense. Mrs. Greenlease, in her mid-40's, was confined to her room under a physician's care.

The mother collapsed Monday afternoon when told of the abduction. A plump, red-haired woman took the boy a few hours earlier from the exclusive Notre Dame de Sion School after telling the nun in charge that his mother had suffered a heart attack.

Police Chief Bernard Brannon said his men were checking tips but full-scale investigation was being withheld at the request of the family, hopeful that the boy would be returned unhurt.

Brannon gave no significance to the delay in a ransom move. He expressed the belief there was reason to believe the boy still was alive and it might take "several days or longer" for the kidnapers to make their move.

School Superintendents To Convene in Columbus

School superintendents from all over Ohio will meet in Columbus on the Ohio State University campus for a two-day conference Friday and Saturday.

City School Superintendent Lester L. Dickey, and D. T. Mills, superintendent of the Marion County schools, will attend the conference, which is sponsored by the Ohio Association of School Administrators.

In addition to school superintendents, the meeting will be atended by school board members and leaders of citizen advisory committees.

High of 86 Gives Way To Low Reading of 39

Sunny weather with fairly warm temperatures is the forecast for the remainder of the week and over the weekend.

Yesterday, a high of 86 was recorded by local weather observers, nine degrees cooler than the previous day when the high was 95. The low reading last night was 39. A year ago, temperatures were 87 high and 50 low.

Clear and cool is the forecast for tonight and it is to get warmer Friday afternoon.

This Happens But Seldom Here

In spite of everything we do, occasionally our service is criticized by some new or old customer. ## Taxes

the Treasury is considering how to reassort excise taxes, seemed certain to stir even more speculation about a possible administration bid for a manufacturers' tax.

Indications were that next year—when all 435 House seats and one third of the 96 Senate seats are at stake in the congressional election—would not be the most favorable political climate for such a bid.

The principal distinction between an excise tax and a sales tax is the point of collection.

While a retail tax would be applied on the goods when bought by the consumer, a manufacturers' tax would be collected on finished products as they come out of the factory. Critics contend the latter would be swelled by the time it reached the consumer, with markups all along the line, but supporters deny this.

Comparative Yield

Treasury and congressional staff specialists estimate a retail tax would raise about $1,140,000,000 annually for each 1 per cent of tax imposed. At the manufacturers' level, where prices start off lower, that tax would produce an estimated 753 million dollars for each 1 per cent.

Thus a 5 per cent retail tax would raise annually about $5,700,000,000 and a 5 per cent manufacturers' tax about $3,760,000,000. Any increased sellers' markups, of course, would come out of consumers' pockets but would not go into the U. S. Treasury.

Two key members of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee—Republican Chairman Daniel A. Reed (NY) and senior Democrat Jere Cooper (Tenn)—have declared opposition to any additional taxes, barring a new national emergency.

Rep. Eberharter (D-Pa), a committee member, said the President's statement is "ominous" for the ordinary taxpayer. He said the Treasury appears to be considering a national manufacturers' tax "which in many respects is more burdensome and more discriminatory than a retail sales tax."

Congressmen Leery

Eberharter contended a 5 per cent manufacturers' tax would mean an increase of up to 10 per cent in retail prices.

Rep. Dingell (D-Mich), another member, said of a manufacturers' tax: "I'll fight it to the last ditch." He said last night on a Du Mont television show:

"I know. . . that the lowest, that the basest, that the most reprehensible kind of sales tax is on the manufacturers' level. If we're going to have a sales tax, let's have it on the retail basis and out in the open."

Rep. Noah Mason (R-Ill), another committee member, said he was "very glad" to hear the administration was giving up the idea of a retail sales tax.

He said he would support a uniform manufacturers' tax only if it were offered in lieu of the present system of sharply varying excise taxes.

Sen. McClellan (D-Ark) applauded abandonment of any idea of a federal retail sales tax, but said he would oppose a manufacturers' tax.

Sen. Theodore F. Green (D-RI) said a manufacturers' levy would be "just another form of sales tax, except it's less obvious."

workmen of terms in the union-plant contract which was signed early in September. While neither company nor union spokesmen would confirm it, it was reported these workmen, dissatisfied with a clause in the contract, walked out, calling on the rest of the men to follow suit. While a later shift reported for work, the men were sent home, and the plant has been idle since.

Grover Hahn, president of the Marion local, denied an earlier report the union had called the men out. He said they "just refused to work." He would give no further details concerning the work stoppage.

David Pollak, company vice president, and Edward J. Baxter, works manager, could not be reached for comment today.

Fine Record Cited

Julian Pollak, reached by telephone in Cincinnati, said there had been but one strike at the plant in the long history of Pollak-Steel Workers relationship. That was in 1946 when the whole industry was on strike. There have been previous work stoppages similar to the present one, but none has had union sanction or has been labeled a strike, he said.

The company, which manufactures reinforced steel and fence posts from rail steel, has been working two full shifts and a third partial shift daily.

United Appeals Campaign Facts

Q. HOW HIGH ARE CAMPAIGN COSTS?

A. United Appeals campaign costs are reduced to a rock-bottom minimum by having many campaigns wrapped up in one package and sold to the community by top salesmen selected from the ranks of all participating organizations and other community service groups. These campaign salesmen take solicitor training instruction fashioned to assure the givers of Marion County that they will be separated from their money by salesmen qualified to answer their questions with informed answers, with dispatch, and in a manner that makes sense.

In Marion it costs less than four cents of every dollar raised for the four participating organizations (Red Cross, Cancer Society, Community Chest, and Heart Association) in United Appeals. The ten Red Feather Services of the Community Chest are Boy Scouts, Club Co-Ed, Emergency Hospitalization Fund, Emergency Welfare Fund, Family Service Society, Fresh Air Fund, Girl Scouts, Salvation Army, USO and YMCA. Many independent campaigns spend as high as 20 cents for every dollar raised.

Waterfront

lence despite inter-union rivalry for control of the waterfront.

Violence Feared

The strike over a wage contract was called by the International Longshoremen's Assn., recently ousted by the American Federation of Labor for failure to rid itself of racketeering elements. Efforts of the AFL to bring the discredited ILA members into a new union inspired fears of possible violence.

Police moved in when members of Local 895 which has affilated with the newly formed AFL—ILA union tried to hand out leaflets urging membership in the new group to ILA pickets circling the Grace Line Pier 25 at W. 10th street.

Separated by the police, the two groups contented themselves by taunting each other.

Tension eased somewhat, however, with the appearance of John Dwyer, former insurgent ILA leader and now a leader in the new group.

Won't Cross Lines

Asserting his men "have no intention of crossing the picket line," Dwyer said they would respect the "no contract-no work" tradition.

Yesterday President Eisenhower said his Labor Department was studying use of the Taft—Hartley injunction to nip the strike of some 60,000 longshoremen and provide an 80-day cooling off period. A White House announcement on the situation was expected today.

Fire Prevention

the home or business. Children are to be given special instructions on how to inspect their homes by the fire department. Assisting the city government in the carrying out of the aims of Fire Prevention Week is the Chamber of Commerce and the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

BOTH GROUPS WILL ASSIST in the distribution and explanation of fire prevention literature. A. F. Busch is chairman of the fire prevention committee of the Chamber of Commerce while Grant Fletcher is head of the same committee for the Jaycees.

Both the city and county will participate in the activities to cut down on the fires which last year took over 12,000 lives and destroyed almost one billion dollars worth of property in America.

Those merchants who are not checked Monday have no cause for easing up in their vigilance. Before the end of the month, the fire department will inspect all businesses in the downtown district. Stores, schools, taverns, hotels, factories, and offices will all be checked to see that owners and operators follow the regulations of the fire codes.

The inspection serves a two-fold purpose. Not only can fire department officials note any infractions of the law, but they also get to know the buildings. This is useful in case of fire, since firemen have some idea of where exits, doors and stairs are located.

CHIEF SIFRITT HAS SAID he will make a report on the conditions of the buildings he inspects Monday. This report will be available for the public.

He reported that during the last 12 months Marion firemen have answered 541 fire and emergency calls and battled blazes which did $295,970.42 damage to local buildings.

Local merchants have announced their intention of cooperating with the fire department in the campaign. A. L. Hamburg, chairman of the retail board of managers, said the group will feature fire prevention in their advertising.

Last year, loss in mercantile store fires was second only to losses in fires in dwelling places throughout the nation. Mercantile fire losses nationally last year amounted to $150 million.

Manufacturers here also gave their support to the program. Most local factories plan to stage fire drills, demonstrations, and plant inspections during the week. In addition, all fire extinguishers in factories will be inspected to make sure they are fully loaded, and in good working order. Demonstrations will be given employes to show how fire extinguishers are operated.

THE CHAMBER of Commerce is entered in the Inter-Chamber National Fire Waste Program contest. This has been held since 1922 when the National Fire Waste Council was founded.

Plans for next week call for the distribution of posters and pamphlets to industry and stores by the Junior Chamber of Commerce. Posters will be given to city and county schools and local fire departments. These will be distributed by the Agricultural Committee of the Chamber, of which Ray Holdridge is chairman.

Check lists for persons to judge the safety of their establishments will be distributed to service clubs, stores, and other organizations. Classroom instructions will be conducted in local schools by fire department officials.

Movies and demonstrations will be given in the junior and senior high schools by Fire Captain Merle Zieg. In the grade schools, fire prevention talks and fire-box demonstrations will be conducted by firemen Stewart Jones and John T. Ganoe.

IN THE COUNTY, group discussions with 4-H Clubs will be held by Ellwood Parrott of the Agricultural Extension Service. In addition, fire prevention check lists will be distributed to farms by members of the 4-H and FFA Clubs.

Children in the grade schools will be given comic books pointing out the dangers of fire and the need for vigilance in trying to prevent any blazes.

All schools in the city and county will be inspected and fire drills will be held under the supervision of local fire department officials.

FIRE CHIEF SIFRITT reports he has had excellent cooperation in the past from groups with which he has worked attempting to lower the loss from fires. Most business places he said, will make any change recommended immediately.

The local Boy Scout organization will also have a part in the activities. They will arrange window displays in downtown stores stressing the need for fire prevention.

Outfielder Jerry Lynch, a Yankee farm hand, is making the Bronx brass mighty happy. He led the Piedmont League in hits, doubles, triples, total bases, RBIs and average. He was fourth in homers.

These Days

By George Sokolsky

SOKOLSKY

We temporary farmers who, with the first breeze of spring, rush from the city to push a seed into the soil, depart from our farms in the autumn when the leaves turn red and golden.

We lead the mixed life of city dweller and farmer, of woodman and taxi-rider, of eating the fruits of one's labors or the French concoctions of the Colony Restaurant—it is a life of contrasts.

Today I write in peace and solitude, except for the call of a catbird, the cooing of pigeons and the rustling of the wind through the leaves. Tomorrow I shall hear the incessant clang of steel on steel, the dull grind of a parade of automobiles, a million radios blaring their varied echoes through a million open windows, the conversations that rise from nowhere but are heard all over as the sound of the city.

ONE SOMETIMES wonders why any of us return to the vast cities; yet, I have seen prospective Thoreaus vegetate on the countryside.

The intention is always to produce a great work, to sit upon a rock and gaze upon the heavens whence comes inspiration. Only too often one gazes until ideas flee like the humming bird. The mind relaxes and the work that was intended remains an intention.

I recall when sometime in the 1920's, I sat upon a rock on the island of Chinsan in the Yangtse River watching the waters of that mighty stream swirl in a torrent and then meekly disappear in the wide stream.

I wrote about it then and said that a Buddhist priest told me that it was like washing the brain.

That was the first time I had heard the expression, and it was right that it should come from a Buddhist, for that is their objective in life, to achieve Nirvana, the sum total of nothingness, which is perfection.

AND THAT, TOO, I have noted here in the country where it is possible to sit quietly and wash one's mind of the accumulations of trivia.

Who really cares, I ask you, if these two celebrated morons are married or divorced of whether having publicly quarrelled, they have as publicly become reconciled?

The robins, too, quarrel and mate and mate and quarrel and nobody bothers with it but the robins. The crow flies high and roars his song, but no press-agent announces the news.

The skunk goes by and leaves his calling card everywhere like some humans.

In the country, one can take refuge in the beauty that a divine intelligence paints everlastingly in perfect symmetry.

The other day, weary of reading long and trying reports, to be digested and used in this small column, I could not help but wonder why only the human race glories in the ugly.

WHAT FOUL and stupid things are said and done in the name of civilization!

The statesmen and historians call it war and the scientists devise instruments of torture and death and all in the name of civilization. Yet, what can be the value of our efforts, if it is not to bring peace and contentment to ourselves and our neighbors?

Why do the statesmen still believe that great empires, achieved by holocausts, are worth the cost in human life? Do they not know that their empires will crumble and leave behind them islands of forgotten little nations.

THE ROBINS are gone and so much else goes with them. The birds gather upon telephone wires, hundreds of them, to take a last look at the lovely land where they sang away the summer.

The chipmunk and rabbit and squirrel will stay behind, having filled their bins with food for the winter. The woodchuck burrows deep in his hole where he will sleep away his time until spring calls again.

It is even like those races of man who cross continents and seas in search of greatness and somewhere stop to find happiness.

And so back to the grind of the city, to endless talk and conferences and meetings and dinners and banquets and the search for amusement.

Both ways of living have their purposes and their reasons and if one can live both ways, in different seasons, he has perhaps discovered a law of life, namely, that all things must be in balance to be of value.

By Victor Riesel

ST. LOUIS

A third World War may flare out of the new Soviet-French love feast, just as the second World War was begot by the Soviet-Nazi pact of 1939—if we take the word and observations of the AFL's roving international experts, who were so warmly praised by Vice-President Richard Nixon and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles for their work with anti-Communist networks and undergrounds from Paris to Tokyo.

RIESEL

This prediction is based in part on intelligence information brought from Paris by the AFL's European border-hopping Irving Brown. During the Communist-Socialist general strike in France last August, Brown learned that the Soviet ambassador to Paris, Vinogradov, approached a high French cabinet member and laid it on the line.

-:-

THE RUSSIANS were willing to ease off workers' demands and end the fabulously costly war in Indochina if the French would join with them in a counter-offensive against Germany.

Vinogradov outlined a full Soviet-French pact which would hit directly at the U.S. and Germany.

The Communist object: to cut America off physically from Germany and prevent the Ruhr industries from retooling for defense production. This retooling would take but a year.

Such a pact would kick the center piece out of our entire European policy. And we'll be well on our way to that grim point if the present pro-American French premier falls.

This information has, of course, been passed on to State Department officials, as has the AFL's data year after year.

-:-

THIS INTIMATE collaboration between America's foreign services and the AFL will continue regardless of the feud on the home and the industrial front. This was evident in virtually all of AFL President Meany's policy statements.

Day after day, Meany reiterated that what is good for the country is good for the AFL, and the AFL would so guide itself.

Since much of the AFL's information comes from its roving representatives (who have been criticized unjustly, it seems to me, in some circles), their day by day activities become of national importance. Some of these I want to put on record here.

While most of the Western World was floundering in the swamps for ideas on exploitation of last June's anti-Communist rioting behind the Berlin Iron Curtain, Irving Brown moved in with movie star Gary Cooper exactly 24 hours after the riots broke out on Stalin Allee in East Berlin.

THE POPULAR Hollywood actor was sent into Berlin by the AFL's Parisian office—Gary Cooper being a dues-paying member of the AFL Screen Actors Guild, one of its earliest members, at that.

Cooper, in his sincere, deliberate, methodical way of speaking, talked to some 55 leaders of Berlin's top labor and literary circles on June 18. Earlier he spoke to 500 officials of the postal, telegraph and telephone workers.

He impressed them with America's freedom. He told them how he had helped to organize a union of actors.

Then he said that he had just looked into East Berlin. There he had seen the Soviet police. They had reminded him of his 1937 days in Berlin when he had been shocked by the Nazi storm troopers. In 1953 he again felt the terror of 1937.

He impressed his listeners, and for the first time in the history of the typographically conservative newspaper, Welt Arbeit, a picture was run on the front page — Cooper's picture talking to German workers.

BEFORE GOING to Berlin, Brown had walked the movie star through the Red belt of Paris. There, on street corners, with Brown translating, Cooper talked to pro-Communist workers, selling them on America. They asked for his autograph and left as friends of ours.

Browns' counterpart in Italy is highly literate, fellow by name of Harry Goldberg, one of the world's most profound students of music.

Day by day, Goldberg works with anti-Communist forces, now specializing in the fight against movie producers who keep Italy's pro-Communist propaganda forces well financed by working with Rome's Communist film industry.

-:-

FROM DISTANT Tokyo, there came to St. Louis a fighting Irishman, by the name of Dick Deverall, with a frightening report of anti-American sentiment there.

Along with Harry Nishio, another AFL member in Tokyo, Deverall publishes an AFL Japanese language magazine answering the lies and literally pornographic anti-U.S. literature, movies and books distributed by the Soviets' propaganda forces. They have also visited 1,000 local union officials in their offices.

Deverall and Nishio are worth many divisions in the war for Asia because the left-wing socialist-led labor federation in Japan, The Sohyo, has gone pro-Communist and may well be the basis of a revolt which would shove us out of our thousands of military bases on the Nip Islands.

Thus a handful of AFL men fight round the world, to keep the Soviets from successfully turning pivotal nations against the U.S. and so put themselves in a position to launch new wars.

Bing-Bang-Bing

By Inez Robb

If you were to ask me real quick what the difference is between singing in opera and in a night club, I would say that you sing louder in the former and funnier in the latter.

INEZ ROBB

And for this off-the-cuff definition, I shall probably be barred from the Metropolitan Opera House — a fate some readers will not regard as much worse than death—by Rudolph Bing, general manager of the Metropolitan Opera Company.

Mr Bing-Bang-Bing is a strict long-hair man himself, with no use for gates.

HE HAS JUST given one of the latter, as a matter of fact, to Helen Traubel, the Met's chief Wagnerian soprano, for picking up a little mink and Brink's money on the night club circuit.

Miss Traubel, one of America's own operatic greats, was given her choice of the Met or the mob. Miss Traubel chose the mob with the result that she will not be heard at the Met during the coming season, but only on TV, radio and Joe's tavern.

It is definitely the tavern's gain, for Miss Traubel was the only real, all-round Wagnerian soprano at the Met.

As a baseball fan and part-owner of a St. Louis team, she was the only soprano at the opera house on familiar terms with both Richard and Honus, and—for all I know—with Bob Jr.

NIGHT CLUBS aren't my dish of tea, but I don't get the fine distinction drawn between "The Desert and the Town" by Mr. Bing He has not yet turned either Rise Stevens or Patrice Munsel out into the cold for trafficking with the movies.

Nor has he yet ordered Lily Pons not to darken the Met's historic door because she put on long black tights and kicked up her heels on television the other night with Imogene Coca.

Miss Pons for Mr. Bing's information, was definitely doing the can-can, or a reasonable facsimile. And no one so far perish forbid, has accused Miss Traubel of any such assault on the arts in her night club tour.

Miss T. in custice to her, has kept her feet where they belong, and her skirts likewise I'm sure.

I DON'T WANT to preach or put the finger on Lily. On her, tights look good. But other ladies at the Met ought to have a rule of thumb to keep them in Mr. Bing's favor, and some guidance and clarification is plainly necessary at this point.

Mr. Bing tried to get Danny Kaye to play the role of the drunken jailer in his English version of "Die Fledermaus". Only a previous commitment kept Mr. Kaye, the great basso buffono, from accepting.

Will someone kindly explain to me the difference between Mr Bing raiding vaudeville and the night club circuit for Mr Kaye, (another famous night club artist did play the role) and vaudeville and the night club circuit raising the Met for Miss Traubel?

EVER SINCE he hit the Met, Mr. Bing has been raiding Broadway for talent to help him keep the Met, the nation's most fabulous invalid, on its feet. Margaret Webster and Alfred Lunt are only two Broadway figures whose genius has been commandeered by Mr. Bing.

What, then, is the difference when a night club taps a Met singer for an engagement at more money per week than the Met can ante up in a season? Hasn't Mr. Bing ever heard of reciprocity?

We have a fine old folk saying in this country that Mr Bing has probably not yet absorbed, to wit: If you want the gravy, you have to make allowance for the spots on the vest.

Heat Worsens Southwestern Ohio Drought

BETHEL, Ohio (AP) — Water still was not running today in Bethel's mains and taps, but there was a plentiful supply here brought in by tankers.

The normal supply of this Clermont County town of 2,000 persons comes from Cloverlick Creek, now a muddy mass instead of a pool of water.

Until the rains come or water is released from Grant Lake, Bethel will have to depend on water hauled in from outside sources. The town has applied for federal disaster assistance so that a pipeline can be laid from the lake to the creek.

Schools remained closed.

Barbers have quit shaving their customers and other businesses have revised their practices to save water. One dry cleaner sank a pipeline through a main street sidewalk to reach an abandoned well.

Yesterday's 90-degree temperature certainly did not aid the drought-stricken southwestern Ohio area.

New Richmond on the Ohio River continued to supply many inland communities with water.

George Wehmann, New Richmond village councilman, assured nearby towns and villages no restriction had been placed on the use of its water.

"Our water is pure, state inspected and comes from 80-foot wells, not the Ohio River," Wehmann said.

The town charges 10 cents for 100 gallons—$1 for 1,000 gallons.

Schools in Batavia, the county seat, were closed yesterday, but officials said this was because of the extreme heat, not because of any water shortage.

Ministers Win Fight Against Liquor Store

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Wellsville Ministerial Assn. has won its battle to keep a state liquor store out of that Columbiana County city of some 8,000.

Anthony A. Rutkowski, state liquor director, said yesterday in a letter to the association:

"It is our judgment that the objections of the Wellsville Ministerial Assn. are sound, meritorious and should be recognized."

"It is clearly evident to us that the citizens of Wellsville do not desire a state liquor store."

Mt. Gilead Council Hears Police Force Improvement Plan

Special to The Star

MT. GILEAD—Plans for reorganizing and improving the Mt. Gilead village police department were presented to the Mt. Gilaed village council at the regular meeting this week.

The report was prepared by the safety committee composed of Paul Swisher, Harley Hanna, and Fred Wieland and lists the following program that the committee would like to see put in operation starting with the first of the year.

(1) Ordinance enforcement and a revision of traffic ordinances. (2) The naming of a police chief (working); employment of one additional full-time patrolman (to make a total force of three); hiring of a part-time man for extra duty and vacation periods, and job security by civil service or the equivalent for members of the force. (3) Recommended installation of parking meters to help finance the program; initial funds for the program to come from the village general funds. (4) The purchase of a police cruiser equipped with radio and additional equipment to be purchased or recommended by the police chief.

Final approval of the report and carrying out of the recommendations will probably not be made until after the general election and the naming of new Council members.

OSU HONOR STUDENTS

Two area people, William F Case of Delaware and Helen L. Blackhall of Galion, have been named to the honor roll of Ohio State University's college of commerce for the summer quarter, according to information received from the university. They were among 30 students who achieved high scholastic attainments.

'Forgotten Man' Is Out of Jail at Last

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The forgotten man" is out of jail today, thanks to a letter to wrote to Dist. Atty. James F. Malone.

John Gorek, a railroad laborer, asked what was to be done about assault and battery charges filed last June 6 by a fellow worker.

Malone investigated and found a justice of the peace had held Gorek for court and jailed him in default of bond. Somehow, the justice apparently forgot to forward a copy of the information needed for grand jury action.

The grand jury declined the case yesterday and Gorek went free.

NEVADA CHURCH SERVICE

Observance of communion and reception of new members will be held at morning worship services at the Nevada Lutheran Church Sunday. For Luther League meeting at 6:30 p.m., the topic will be "Being a Christian in World Affairs," and Leaders will be Marvin Heinlen and Glen Speigel. A delegation from the Nevada church will attend the convention of the Western Conference at Olivet Lutheran Church in Toledo Monday and Tuesday. The Church Council will meet Wednesday night. A group from the church will attend the county Sunday School convention in Upper Sandusky at the Methodist Church the following Sunday.

STATE LEASES NURSERY

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A. W. Marion, director of the Ohio natural resources department, yesterday signed a 10-year lease on the 200-acre Federal Tree Nursery near Zanesville. The 100th General Assembly appropriated $150,000 to operate it for two years and the state hopes to buy it outright before the lease expires.

Real Spanish Rice Makes Tasty Treat

Browning in Fat Called Secret of Delicious Nut-Like Flavor

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Cooking secrets are fun — to give away. Want to know the secret of preparing real Spanish Rice? It lies in one simple process lightly browning the rice in fat before you ever add the tomato sauce. It's this little transaction with the saucepan or skillet that gives the nutty flavor connoisseurs of Spanish Rice hold in such esteem.

So many ways you can vary this good rice dish, so thrifty for family meals. Make it with that fine product — pre-cooked rice — and deck it with tuna and eggplant so it will be a hearty supper dish.

SPANISH RICE . . . make it with pre-cooked rice and tuna, then serve it on golden-brown eggplant slices for a hearty supper dish.

SPANISH RICE WITH TUNA AND EGGPLANT

Ingredients: ¼ cup bacon drippings or butter or margarine, ½ cup thinly sliced onion (1 medium-size), 1-3 cup diced green pepper (½ medium-size), 1 1-3 cups packaged pre-cooked rice, 1¾ cups hot water, two 8-ounce cans tomato sauce, 1 teaspoon salt, pepper, one 7-ounce can solid pack tuna (drained and flaked), 1 medium eggplant (about 1 pound) 1 egg (well beaten), 1 tablespoon water, fine cracker crumbs, shortening, parsley.

Method: Melt fat in saucepan or skillet. Add onion, green pepper and rice; cook and stir over high heat until lightly browned. Add water, tomato sauce, salt and pepper. Mix well. Bring quickly to a boil. Cover tightly and simmer 10 minutes. Add tuna fish and heat thoroughly. Meanwhile, wash and peel eggplant. Cut into slices about ½ inch thick. Sprinkle with salt and pepper to taste. Mix egg and water. Dip eggplant slices into egg mixture, then into cracker crumbs Brown both sides in shortening over medium heat Drain on absorbent paper. Arrange eggplant on platter and top each slice with a mound of the rice. Garnish with parsley. Makes 4 servings.

Here are easy-do variations on this recipe that you might like to try.

Prepare the Spanish rice as directed above, simmering for 10 minutes. Then instead of adding the tuna and serving with eggplant, add a half cup of grated sharp cheddar cheese; mix well and heat thoroughly. Turn into a serving dish and sprinkle with another half cup of grated sharp cheddar cheese

Or simply serve the rice with its tomato sauce "as is," and sprinkle with Parmesan cheese.

Or add a cup of cooked diced lobster to the rice and tomato sauce and reheat.

Or add several diced canned pimientos to the rice and tomato sauce

Or add one and a half cups of diced ham or canned luncheon meat to the rice and tomato sauce.

Pravda Hails Red Conquest of China

LONDON (AP)—The Moscow newspaper Pravda today listed the revolution that brought about China's Communist regime as the third most important event in world history.

The only events of greater importance, Pravda said, were the Russian Revolution and "the Soviet Union's victory over Hitlerite fascism."

The newspaper was quoted by Moscow radio.

Jap Foreign Minister Tells of Defense Plans

MANILA (AP) — Foreign Minister Katsuo Okazaki of Japan said yesterday his country could not join a proposed Pacific regional defense alliance now because Japan's security forces are so small.

He told Filipino newsmen in a broadcast interview that Japan is planning to build up its air, sea and land forces "because we do not wish to depend on the United States forever." But he assured neighboring Asian countries they need not fear a resurgence of Japanese militarism.

2-CAR CRASH FATAL

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Dewey van Belkun, 52, of suburban Grove City, was killed yesterday when his car collided with a semi-trailer and plunged into a ditch on Harrisburg pike near Urbancrest

Constituents Tired Of Aiding Europe, Rep. Brown Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Clarence J. Brown of Ohio says folks in his home state are "getting tired of giving all those billions to Europe"

He said "farmers, businessmen gas station attendants and others" in Ohio are criticizing America's foreign aid program. "They would like to have some of that money to spend on their own families," the Blanchester Republican said.

"Some farmers were complaining, too," he said in an interview yesterday. He added they don't like "the high prices they have to pay and the low prices they're getting for their crops."

Brown said Ohio farmers don't blame the President for foreign aid. "I think Eisenhower could carry Ohio today," he asserted.

Farmers in Ohio blame Congress for our foreign aid program and "some would criticize Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson on farm prices," Brown said.

HURT GRIDDER IMPROVES

Waverly Mayor Raps Audit Report

WAVERLY, Ohio (AP)—The mayor of this booming Pike County village says a state examiner's report finding his books some $4,000 short is "political propaganda"

Mayor A S. Keechle said State Auditor James A. Rhodes issued a derogatory report because "I happen to be a Democrat and he happens to be a Republican."

The report, made public yesterday, covered the period Feb. 27, 1950-May 30, 1953 It said Keechle was behind $4,099 55 in fines and licenses fees and that he "personally benefited from the use of funds illegally withheld."

Keechle admitted he was 'a couple of months behind" in his accounts. But he said the reason was the atomic plant boom which has sent population figures in the area soaring

"Usually my cases run 30 or 40 a year This year, I've had 426 cases so far," he said.

Keechle sa' he gave the examiner a check for the amount as soon as he was told how much he was behind.

He denied using the funds personally.

Owner Arrested After Stolen Car Is Recovered

Galantiere admitted to police he bought the books and photos, but he denied having resold any of them. He was charged with possessing obscene literature and was released on $300 bond.

Ministers Review Work

Instructors of Religious Education Give Reports

Possibilities of future action by the Marion County Council of Churches with the religious interests of the community in mind, and a view of the Weekday Religious Education work in the public schools was on the business agenda of the council Monday night.

The meeting was held at Epworth Methodist Church, and Rev Walter C Eyster, host pastor, offered opening prayer. Good representation from the various churches co-operating in the council organization was reported. Rev. L Harrison Ludwig of Salem Evangelical and Reformed Church, council president, was in charge

A NEW TEACHER of the Weekday Religious Education classes of the public schools, Miss Evelyn Greenamyer, a June graduate of Asbury College at Wilmore, Ky., was introduced.

Mrs Thelma Wilcox, supervising teacher of the religious instruction program, which is sponsored by the Council of Churches, reported 66 classes being held in Marion and the county each week, with six conducted as a new phase of the work at Green Camp

The three teachers from Marion, Mrs Wilcox, Miss Garnet Laird, and Miss Greenamyer, each conduct two periods one day a week at the Green Camp School. Mrs Wilcox said Percentage of enrollment in these classes both in Marion and at Green Camp is high, she pointed out Schedules for the classes are being made out for those interested in visiting the classes, it was announced In addition, teachers are available for speaking engagements to present their work to organizations in the community.

J. D. TORRANCE gave recommendations of the finance committee that salaries of the religious education teachers be increased so that eventually the pay scale measures up to the earnings of other teachers in the school system

Discussion was held on employment of a chaplain for the hospital, with a committee appointed to explore possibilities of securing the services of a man for this work

The idea of a hospital chaplain was presented with the thought in mind of providing one of the religious counselors to hold services in the proposed chapel of the new Marion General Hospital This worship center will be at the disposal of the three major faiths represented among Marion's churches, it was explained.

A REPORT was made that there will be a room at the new YMCA for use of the Council of Churches and its affiliated groups

Mrs. Pauline Dutt announced that the program for the October meeting of the Marion County Council of Church Women will be built around the Weekday Religious Education work. Mrs Willard Ginder reported that various plans are being considered in an effort to work out arrangements for the Marion Christian Youth Movement noonday fellowship luncheons held each year during school term for high school students.

Participation in the annual community Christmas parade, and the possibility of bringing a Goodwill Industries setup to Marion, were further items of discussion. It was decided to leave these matters in the hands of the social action committee. Closing prayer was by Rev. J. B. Holloway of Trinity Baptist Church.

Homes of Famous People

1802. HAMILTON GRANGE, New York.

By The Associated Press

This old mansion was built in 1802 by Alexander Hamilton and named the Grange, after his grandfather's estate in Scotland. When Hamilton purchased the land, it was beautiful hilly country, thinly settled and with delightful views of the Hudson and Harlem Rivers. New York City, then at the southern end of Manhattan Island, was eight miles distant. The gardens surrounding the mansion, were the creation of Hamilton himself, who attended personally to the arrangement of all shubbery and trees. A group of these latter, 13 majestic gumtrees, (to symbolize the 13 original states) were known as the "Union Trees" for many years, but have now disappeared. The mansion, built of massive timbers, said to have been a gift from Hamilton's father-in-law, Gen. Philip Schuyler, still stands. It is a square structure, with spacious rooms on two floors, and a roomy basement below. It has verandas, embellished with ornamental ballustrades, and is dominated by four enormous chimney-stacks. It is open to the public.

Baltimore Firemen Plan Demonstration

BALTIMORE (AP)—Baltimore firemen are going to launch Fire Prevention Week by starting one They will set fire to a three-story brick house Sunday and then put out the flames with new and experimental methods of fine fighting, Chief Michael Lotz said.

The house is to be torn down anyway, to make room for a slum clearance project

HOME FROM CONVENT. Former film actress June Haver is flanked by her parents, Andrew and Marie Otterstad in Los Angeles on her arrival by plane from the Sisters of Charity convent in Xavier, Kan. She said she was home due to illness

Former Film Star Breaks Precedent In Leaving Convent

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The Most Rev. Edward J. Hunkeler, archbishop of the Kansas Diocese says June Haver left the Sisters of Charity convent in a "candid and proper manner" but that he had never heard of a novitiate taking temporary leave

In Los Angeles the blonde, former $3,500-a-week actress said she left the Xavier, Kan., convent because of ill health Tuesday, but "I want to return as soon as I am able"

Archbishop Hunkeler said the possibility of her return "cannot be discussed until she initiates such action"

Miss Haver spent 7½ months at the convent.

Brooklyn Fails in Attempt To Bunt Way to Victory

Dressen's Plan Backfires As Yanks Win Opener 9-5

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—The team which has been widely acclaimed as the greatest hitting outfit in modern National League annals, the Brooklyn Dodgers has taken to bunting against the New York Yankees at the outset of the 1952 World Series and so after this you can expect almost anything to happen

Actually, the main question after that 3 hours and 10 minute exhibition they struggled through yesterday is whether the two clubs can last it out The Yankees are out in front yodeling that old favorite to the effect that anything you can do they can do better

When the Dodgers started hitting home runs the Yankees replied in kind When the Dodgers belted Allie Reynolds from the hill and pulled abreast at 5-5 the world champions, came alive again and knocked out their decisive 9-5 victory, going away You don't know how or when Casey Stengel's star-struck athletes are going to do it You only know that it will happen

As fans discussed the situation far into the night, three subjects were uppermost The first concerned the mental gymnastics of Manager Charlie Dressen of Brooklyn in ordering two straight bunts at the juncture when his team was threatening to break the opening contest wide open The second had to do with the throwing hand of Roy Campanella, the Brooklyn catcher and the third with Allie Reynolds' aching back

Taking the min order of their importance, Campanella's hand probably bore the greater weight over the question whether Reynolds will be of any further use to the Yanks during the Series

Whether Campanella will be able to operate at something approaching 100 per cent of capacity in the remaining games of the classic could well mean the difference between a Yankee sweep and such a tingling seven-game thriller as the same two teams waged a year ago

The squat Brooklyn backstop was struck on the outside fat of his right hand by one of Reynolds' fast balls at the start of the second inning For the remainder of the game Campanella could grip no bat his bat nor the ball snugly His poor peg to second in the eighth inning enabled Billy Martin to effect the steal that set off the three-run Yankee rally that sealed Brooklyn's doom

Last night the hand was swollen and Campanella refused to have an X ray made He said it would make no diference one way or another that he intended to play in today's game whatever the cost This is an admirable sentiment but it is to be taken into serious consideration in evaluating Brooklyn's chances, such as they are

All year the Dodgers have gone as Campanella went When he was coming through with his long hits in the climactic stages of their big games Dressen's men won When he was in a slump the Dodgers were just another ball club If he is seriously handicapped from here on you may start measuring Stengel for his fifth halo

The question of whether Charlie Dressen proved himself something less than a genius in ordering two straight batters to lay the ball down in the seventh inning yesterday still was wide open at a late hour Brooklyn partisans muttered about 'second guessing' and said their pilot had followed the book Others were not so sure that Charlie hadn't passed up a bet

The situation was this The Dodgers trailing by 4-5 got busy on old chew tobacco Johnny Sain at the outset of the seventh inning and by chopping three straight singles just over or through the Yankee infield pushed across the tying run Thus they still had runners on first and second with nobody out

It obviously was a golden opportunity but Dressen faced a problem The very bottom of his batting order was up—Billy Cox No 8 and Clem Labine, his third pitcher, No 9 The Brooklyn pilot had either to go for a big inning or to try to move the leading run around to third He chose the latter, and it backfired

Sain, his jaw bulging with the heart of the leaf fired to Cox, and both he and catcher Yogi Berra sprang into action as though they had been catapulted Yogi reached the dribbler first and flied to Gil McDougald at third as Gil Hodges went tearing in It was close as the next heart beat, but umpire Art Gore ruled it a putout Some thought it could have been called the other way and Dressen danced in pain in the coach's box

Then Labine tried it too and this time Berra pegged Carl Furillo out at third with a stride to spare Junior Gilliam then sent up a pop foul to end the Dodger threat and that was the last the National Leaguers saw of Sain

It is idle, of course, to speculate what might have happened had Dressen played things differently Cox might have hit into a double play A pinch hitter for Labine might have done no better than the Clem did, and the fact remains that Sain and his unsung sidekick Joe Collins, banged across four more big runs after that But the inning was about all the boys had to argue over

Otherwise it was just another Yankee victory notable only for its distanec hitting and indifferent quality of the pitching, other than that of Sain

Carl Erskine presumably Brooklyn's best, could not survive past the first inning in which the Yankees lathered him for four runs

Reynolds, the Yankee bellwether departed in the sixth after his back had broken down and he had been scalped by three home runs The Chief said it may have ended his series work Stengel however, was optimistic that he might be available for a few innings of relief work, if needed

On the law of averages today's game should be better Both Ed Lopat of the Yanks and Elwin (Preacher) Roe of the Brooks are eminent and sagacious left handers whose fast balls have long since departed but who possess fine control of their dipsy doos They give a batter a little of this and a little of that usually nothing that he really wants

The current odds of 2-1 on the Yanks to win the series sound about right

Dutch Leonard Given Release, Seeks New Job

CHICAGO (AP) — Baseball's fountain of youth apparently has trickled to an end for Emil (Dutch) Leonard the grand knuckle-baller who averaged almost 10 victories per season for 20 major league years.

The 43 year-old Leonard yesterday was released by the seventh-place Chicago Cubs a bit of sentimental news virtually lost in the blare of World Series' opening day

The Brooklyn Dodgers the Washington Senators — especially the Senators—the Philadelphia Phils all got the best this fierce mound competitor could give He goes to pasture with a lifetime big league record of 191 triumphs.

Perhaps baseball's most exceptional physical specimen, Leonard was in far better shape than many players years and years younger

But his pitching skill faded while his well-muscled, 197 pound frame still craved action Even this season, Dutch would be hardly started with calisthenics when younger Cubs would huff to a finish

'I still think I can be a relief pitcher" said Leonard who this year had a 2-3 record in 64 innings for the Cubs

But he wasn't convincing as he talked at his Auburn, Ill., home

"I'll shop around I see they have a new manager at Cincinnati I'm sure I can pitch well three or four innings, three or four times a week

'But the Cubs want to talk to me if I can't get a job pitching I'm a 10-year man, so I can deal for myself Maybe I can manage a minor league team for the Cubs And I wouldn't mind being a big league coach either"

Injured Back May Limit Reynolds' Action in Series

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—The voice on the other end of the telephone sounded tired and dispirited

'I don't know' the voice kept repeating 'I just don't know

A pause then Allie Reynolds' voice was heard again It came through scarcely audible and very deliberate

I pray and hope I can pitch But I would have to say it's very doubtful whether I can start again About relieving I don't know

The only thing I know for sure right now is that my back hurts and there is nothing I can do about it but sit tight and wait That's the worst part of it I know it's no good but I don't know how bad it is

The great New York Yankee right hander went on to explain how he hurt his back during the opening World Series game against the Brooklyn Dodgers He wrenched it in the third inning and reinjured it in the fifth

The 35 year old clutch pitcher had been firing the ball in his old time form through four scoreless innings He was hit fairly hard in the fifth and was shelled from the mound in the sixth The Yankees went on to win 9-5

I first hurt my back in the third while pitching to Wayne Belardi he explained "The only one who knew it besides myself was my wife Dale She was watching me closely (naturally) and familiar with every move I make, she detected immediately that something was wrong'

Reynolds went on to strike out Belardi but hurt his back again in the fifth

'I couldn't put anything on the ball in the sixth he said

Reynolds said he should have taken himself out of the game in the fifth but he hated to leave

I knew now it was a mistake to stay in' he said, 'but I wanted to win that game more than anything I wanted that No 7 shot would have tied Red Ruffing's World Series record Maybe if the game were in the seventh or eighth inning, I would have quit But it was only the fifth and I wanted that victory bad"

The injury is a recurrence of an early season mishap that ruined Reynolds as a starting pitcher until the final month Allie says it is a memento of a bus accident that injured several Yankees in Philadelphia last July

'It's been bothering me on and off all year after the accident" he said

Prexies, Irish Prep for League Games

Harding Plays at Tiffin, St. Mary Faces Mt. Gilead

Harding and St. Mary will go into their games Friday night as lopsided favorites. The Prexies will be playing a Buckeye League game at Tiffin Columbian while St. Mary entertains Mt. Gilead at the Harding Stadium in a Mid-Ohio Conference tilt. Both will be defending uncrossed goal lines.

Both teams will be seeking their third straight wins and second in league play. Pete Howison's Harding squad has a 6-0 win over Columbus West and a 20-0 thumping of Bowling Green under its belt. Ray Robbins and his Irish claim a 27-0 verdict over Cardington and a 7-0 upset of Lima St. Rose.

Prexies Outweighed

Harding for the third straight week will be giving away weight. The Columbian crew will weigh in at a 189-pound average along the line while the backs average 171 pounds. Nine lettermen are back from last year's team including seven in the starting lineup.

The team got off to a slow start but has been showing steady progress, Tiffin reports show. The Redmen bowed to Bucyrus 8-6 in their opener but came back last week to nip Port Clinton 20-18.

Dale Griffin has been the team's big gun in its first two games. The 180-pound junior directs the T attack from his quarterback post and has been hitting his receivers regularly with his southpaw aerials. The remainder of the backfield shapes up with Cecil Pryor and Larry Shefferly, 160-pound juniors, at the halves and 185-pound Bill Frey, a sophomore, at full.

Injuries Hit Indians

David Drake and Philip Engle, both weighing in at 190 and reaching above the 6-2 mark, will be at ends while the tackles will be Allen Krock, 255-pound junior, and Kenneth Kellar, 210-pounder. Harvey Kerchner, 185, and Wayne Kuhn, 140, fill the guard spots and at center will be 190-pound John Arbogast. The Columbian punting is handled by Jerry Frey. Another boy almost certain to see action is Bill Groman, second-line quarterback. He is a brother to Harry Groman, Tiffin football and basketball star of three years ago.

Coach Les Grace's Mt. Gilead Indians will be seeking their first win in the battle against St. Mary. His team dropped its opener to Big Walnut, 23-7, and last week bowed to Utica, 19-8.

The team will be playing without the services of its regular quarterback, Ted Moody. He will be out of action for at least three weeks with a chest injury. Grace will probably use Jack Persley or Ron Osborn as his replacement with Fred Jolley and Gene Brush at the halves and John Staley at fullback.

Along the line the Indians will probably shape up with Dick Zolman and Larry White at ends, David Powers and Eddie Osborn at tackles, Gerald Weaver and Wallace Beck in the guard posts and Ken Evans at center.

Bill Hershner, tackle, will be out of action along with Moody. He suffered a torn ankle ligament during a recent practice session.

Marion Barons Obtain Center

The Marion Barons Hockey Club strengthened themselves at center today with the signing of Harold Jones at their Barrie, Ontario training camp.

"Our three lines should be strong at the key position with good playmakers like Harold Jones, Gordon Vejprava and possibly Joe Inglesby or Kenny Schultz to fill the bill," commented Ott Heller, playing-coach of the Marion Barons.

Jones' last club was the Lethbridge Native Sons, runners up for the Memorial Cup Trophy last season. He was born at Trail, British Columbia, in 1933.

The rookie center is a fine all-around athlete who is on the St. Louis Browns reserve list. He is six feet tall and weighs 180 pounds.

Heller is preparing his charges for the opening exhibition game at the Marion Memorial Coliseum, Oct. 11 at 3:30 p.m. against the Cleveland Barons.

Such all star players as scoring champion Eddie Olson and All-League defenseman Eddy Reiglo will be with the Cleveland club.

The veteran performer for the Detroit Lions in the NFL is Vince Banonis who has played eight years in the league.

SHORT SPORTS

By John Short

A visit to Marion yesterday and last night by Senator Estes Kefauver would have caused him to flip his lid. Some of the sporting offers being made called for an investigation. In most cases a psychiatrist was needed far more than a senator.

Most of the speakers were quoting odds on the Yankees but a few die-hard National League rooters were still willing to back the Dodgers despite the opening game loss.

SHORT

One gentleman offered to back the Dodgers to take the series in five games after the eighth inning rally by the Yanks. He conceded the opening game after John Sain's double but predicted a quick come back for Brooklyn to the tune of four straight wins.

Another put his roll on the Yankees to take the classic in four straight. That wager seemed to attract the most play. He was covered almost immediately.

One unidentified man is still on the spot despite the fact the Yanks took the first game. Days before the series opened he offered $100 on them to win four straight. At last report he was still sweating.

Another gentleman looked all over town to find New York backers in the opener. He laid down a twenty but couldn't get it covered until just prior to the game.

Office workers and store employes kept the sidewalks hot between their places of employment and the nearest spot with a television set. Shop workers and others unable to get to a radio kept the telephone wires humming in an effort to get the latest results.

Friendly pools were found all over town. The usual pools on Ohio State and Notre Dame football were forgotten as baseball took its last fling. The lucky ones with the Yanks in the first were still celebrating last night.

BIG ONE. St Mary football fans are still talking of the 7-0 win over Lima St. Rose last Saturday night. The win was taken in stride until the fans learned that St. Rose was loaded and had been expected to romp through its schedule with a minimum of trouble.

After covering the game, we called a report to the Lima sports desk. Al White, sports editor of the Lima News, insisted we were kidding when told the score. He informed his co-workers of the outcome and they all but tore the telephone from the desk.

Buckeyes, MSC Will Win, Says Football Expert

By HAROLD CLASAASEN

NEW YORK (AP)—How can you think of future football games while dodging line drives and home run blasts from the World Series rivals? (Last week's figures: 31 winners in 40 games that reached a decision for an average of .775. Season's total: 50 correct, 17 incorrect for .746).

The winners this weekend:

Michigan State over Minnesota: The Spartans apparently aren't as strong as last year and the Gophers are stronger now that Bob McNamara's knee has healed. But the signs say Michigan State.

Ohio State over California: This is the game you will see on your TV after you have finished the World Series contest. A replay of the 1950 Rose Bowl game with Ohio again the victor.

Duke over Tennessee: Duke always troubles Tennessee and this Tennessee team apparently troubles easy.

Michigan over Tulane: Michigan made five touchdowns in 10 minutes against the University of Washington last week. One spree like that will be enough this week, too.

Oklahoma over Pittsburgh: Those Oklahoma sophomore backs had their bath of fire against Notre Dame.

Notre Dame over Purdue: A neighborhood spat has produced surprises. Missouri found holes in the Purdue line last week and the Irish should do the same.

Rice over Cornell: Even if the cowboys from Texas are without their ponies, they'll do plenty of riding.

Southern California over Indiana: (Friday) Aramis Dandoy, Southern Cal tailback, has gained 318 yards in two games and shows no signs of running out of gas.

Baylor over Miami (Friday): The Texas Bears crushed California, 25-0, in their opener two weeks ago and have been waiting for this one since.

Penn over Penn State: One of those civil wars that could go either way but Penn State has the longer injury lists with Tony Rados, quarterback, and end Jesse Arnelle both limping.

MORRAL JUNIORS WIN

Morral Junior High School's baseball squad trimmed Prospect Junior High 14-3 on the losers' field Wednesday behind the hurling of Richard Craycraft and a heavy hitting barrage. It marked the sixth straight victory for Morral Junior High School, which meets Green Camp next Wednesday.

For the third consecutive day the state highway patrol this morning reported no accidents in the Marion area.

This is the longest period with no accidents in the past six months, the patrol reported.

The patrol reported three arrests.

Andrew C. Anderson, 37, of Pontiac, Mich., was arrested for speeding on Route 23 at 7:30 p.m. yesterday. He was fined $10 and costs by Mayor Koehler of Upper Sandusky.

Harry Mussun, 37, of Chicago was fined $15 and costs by Mayor Healea of Cardington for unsafe operation on Route 42 at 9:10 p.m. yesterday.

Mayor Healea also fined Fred Phelps, 39, of Salem, Ill., $15 and costs for unsafe operation on Route 42 at 8:15 p.m. yesterday.

U.S. Traffic Toll 3,700 for August

CHICAGO (AP)—Traffic accidents took more lives in August than in any previous month this year.

The National Safety Council, in reporting that grim finding today, placed the August toll at 3,700.

That raised the total of fatalities in motor vehicle accidents to 24,120 for the first eight months of 1953—an increase of two per cent over the number in the corresponding period last year.

Benefit Game Scheduled for Harding Band

A football game for the benefit of the Harding High School band will be played Saturday night at 8 p.m. at Harding Stadium.

The game will be between the Harding Reserves and the Columbus West Reserve team.

Proceeds from the annual event will go toward the purchase of additional uniforms for the band. More uniforms are needed this year due to the increase in the size of the band, according to Homer Huffman, director.

Tickets for the game, priced at 25 cents for students and 50 cents for adults, are on sale by members of both the band and orchestra and also by their parents.

During the halftime of the game, a special show will be given by the band.

Census Bureau Still Counting Shingles, Rep. Bow Reports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Bow (R—Ohio) said today he hopes Congress next year will relieve the Census Bureau of the duty of counting red cedar shingles.

He said a 1937 law still in force requires the census people to count the shingles. The count was supposed to help determine whether a duty should be imposed on Canadian shingles, the Congressman said, but Congress eliminated such a tariff six years ago.

The census director "will have to go on counting" until the House approves a Senate-passed bill to end the shingle tally, Bow said in a newsletter.

Grandmother Absorbs Lesson About Footwear

PORTLAND, Me. (UP) — Mrs. Charles W. Berry was in the habit of admonishing her four-year-old granddaughter, Andrea Beem, for putting her shoes on the wrong feet.

Andrea had her revenge in a crowded super-market when she exclaimed, "Nana, you're wearing a green shoe and a brown one!

Mrs. Berry looked down and blushed as clerks and other shopper laughed. She had indeed slipped on mis-matched shoes in haste to get to the store.

What To Do With Red GI's

Pentagon Faces Unpleasant Problem

By DON WHITEHEAD

WASHINGTON (AP)—The return of prisoners of war from Korea was a happy occasion that brought joy to thousands of homes Most of us would like to ignore the other side of the story—the ugly side

But it cannot be ignored—not if there is any real meaning to the red badge of courage worn by the living and the dead who stood fast against Red propaganda and torture Sooner or later the armed services will pass judgment on the conduct of some prisoners while they were in the hands of the Communists

Presumably, there will be no problem in classifying any prisoner who chooses of his own free will to remain with the Communists He would be considered a deserter and in effect a traitor to his country

Secretary of Defense Wilson has said individual cases will be studied to determine if there had been unreasonable failure to measure up to the standard of individual conduct which is expected even of a prisoner of war, or deviations from standards of behavior prescribed by law (the code of military justice"

These cases fall into three general categories

1 Those prisoners who collaborated with the Reds and 'ratted' on their comrades in order to gain favors for themselves even though it meant greater misery for others

2 Those prisoners who, under pressure of threats and torture signed false confessions and made propaganda broadcasts for the Reds which Wilson termed 'contrary to the interests of their country'

3 Those prisoners who the Reds say have refused repatriation and have chosen to remain with the Communists Only 23 out of more than 3 000 Americans are listed in this class, and their shocked parents refuse to believe they are acting voluntarily

Indications have been the military will be sympathetic toward the former prisoners taking into account their suffering at the hands of the Reds

But where is the line to be drawn in an 'unreasonable failure to measure up to the standard of conduct expected of military men' There is the rub

The easy and perhaps the popular way out would be to forget the whole thing But such a course would set a dangerous precedent for the future

Gen William Dean says he told his captors they could go ahead and carry out their threats to cut out his tongue if they wished—but he wouldn't be a propaganda agent for them He said he refused to be considered a traitor to his country Other prisoners told of defying the Communists even to the point of risking death and such defiance did mean death for some

Other prisoners say they succumbed to Red demands only after hours of mental and physical torture when it seemed the only course to save themselves and others from death

There is tremendous sympathy for the prisoners and what they endured Most of us wonder in our hearts how we would react in a similar situation We wonder whether we would be a Dean or someone with an easier breaking point No man can say with certainty until he has been put to such a test

But neither can a man forecast how he will conduct himself in combat until he has experienced it And yet the armed forces have stern rules of conduct governing combat men The rules must be stern because the very life of the fighting units and of the nation may depend on observance of these rules. They cannot be taken lightly.

The trouble here is that the enemy fights by no rules of humane warfare and recognizes no agreement on treatment of prisoners And so the military must apply its old rules of conduct to a terrible new situation

The closet door can hardly be closed on this skeleton

Sophie Tucker Golden Jubilee Dinner Will Be Packed With Stage Memories

By EDWARD McGUIRE
North American Newspaper Alliance

NEW YORK — Shortly after Sophie Tucker left her home in Hartford, Conn., 47 years ago to go into show business here, she wrote to her mother: "I'll make you proud of me some of these days."

Five years later, when Sophie introduced the song "Some of These Days," which audiences still clamor for and which somehow became the theme song of her career, her mother was proud of her. Sophie was on the "big time" at last and sending money home every week.

But Sophie traveled a hard road before clicking on the big time. And you wouldn't be stretching your imagination too much to figure that, on the night of Sunday, Oct 4, when more than 1,500 friends, fans and admirers from the entertainment and business worlds pack the Waldorf Astoria's grand ballroom to tender her a golden jubilee testimonial dinner, Sophie's thoughts will go to her mother's restaurant in Hartford where, in 1903, she washed dishes, waited on table, and sang for the customers.

TO BORROW A phrase from show business, Sophie Tucker was born on the road. Not the Keith or the Orpheum or the Pantages circuits, which she traveled so long and so successfully in the heyday of vaudeville, but on one of the rutted tracks leading from Russia across Poland to the Baltic used by poor emigrants bound for America, seeking to escape their poverty and misery.

Sophie's mother—the family name was Kalish—was jolting along in a canvas-covered wagon on the dirt road when it became urgent for the driver to stop. Sophie was born in a near-by farmhouse. That, some say, was 70 years ago; others 68. Sophie herself says 65. No matter—nobody knows the exact spot, anyway, but nobody today could be more up to date than the last of the red-hot mamas with her poodle haircut, her platinum mink, her diamonds, her multicolored beads, and her syncopated sexy songs of the past and present.

Papa Kalish had gone to America not long before Sophie's birth, and a job in far-off Boston made it possible for him to send for his family. He had run away from Russian Military service and with a companion, Charles Abuza, sailed for the United States. Abuza died en route and the young Russian Jew, terror stricken that he might be yanked back to Russia, adopted his dead friend's name.

SOPHIE TUCKER
Last of the 'Red Hot Mamas'

By the time Sophie was 8, Moses and Anna Abuza had saved enough money to buy a modest hotel in Hartford—a venture that might have failed had it not been for Mama's restaurant. However, with prices at 25 cents for the regular dinner and 50 for the special de luxe (chicken or steak), it was lean going. Sophie washed dishes and waited on table. As to those days, she once said: "If I had a dollar for every greasy dish I washed, I'd be the richest woman in show business."

Mrs. Abuza's dinners drew a large patronage of actors and Sophie, listening to their talk, vowed that she, too, would go into show business some day and get Mama and herself and all of the family—there was also a sister, Anna, and two brothers, Philip and Moe—out of that streaming kitchen.

A big girl with a big voice, she would sing to the customers while serving them—her most popular numbers were "Wait till the Sun Shines, Nellie" and "On a Sunday Afternoon" and the customers gave her dimes and quarters and sometimes as much as 50 cents. Most of this money went to her mother, but occasionally she saved out enough to see some show playing Hartford. Later, at amateur concerts in Riverside Park, audiences clamored for "the fat girl" to entertain them with her singing. That was 50 years ago.

SOPHIE WAS still in school and only a few months past her 16th birthday when she married a boy named Louis Tuck. His wages not being enough for them to set up a separate household, they lived with Mama and Papa Abuza in the old hotel. Here Sophie's son was born, and she resumed waiting on table, washing dishes — and singing for the customers.

That spring, the Howard brothers—Willie and Eugene—and other old stage friends who dined at Mama's restaurant while playing Hartford told her she could do better with her voice, that she ought to get out and make something of it. Her husband, however, contented with living with her family, objected, but Sophie was determined now that she would not see her mother work herself to death, nor did she intend a similar future for herself. She sang for the customers as never before, putting every cent into a box for the day when she would go into show business. Louis moved out.

"I, Sophie Tuck, have one hundred dollars of my own," she was able to say in 1906 and she headed for New Haven to see her friends, the Howards, playing there at the time. Willie gave her cards to songwriter friends in New York, among them Harry Von Tilzer, one of the foremost of the era.

VON TILZER, as did the others, heard her, said "hum" and told her to "drop in again some time." Over and over again Sophie made the rounds of what is now Tin Pan Alley, and then she knew she had to find some other way to get her break. First, she wrote a letter home:

"I have decided to go into show business . . . I have made up my mind you will never stand behind a stove and cook any more . . . Take care of my son and I will make you proud of me some of these days."

Funds were running low; room rent could not be avoided, but Sophie caught on at the Cafe Monopole singing for one sustaining meal each day. It was here that the name she made world famous was born, when the Monopole's proprietor asked her name, she rejected "Mrs. Tuck" as unsuitable for a singer and answered "Sophie Tucker."

A paying job was a necessity, though, and friends suggested she try an uptown rathskeller, the German Village. Its manager's reaction made Sophie realize she looked like just what she was, "a big, gawky country girl, not more than 17," so she decided to buy some clothes on time and have her hair arranged to make her look older. With new spirit, she applied once more to the German Village and this time was lucky in seeing the proprietor instead of the manager. She said she was 23, and he hired her.

THAT WAS IN November, 1906. She sang between 50 and 100 songs nightly at the rathskeller for a salary of $15 per week. But tips—divided among singers and musicians—were generous, Sophie was a success, and substantial money orders began going home.

This wasn't show business, though, and Sophie knew it. She tried for and was accepted on an amateur night at the 125th St. theater. Donning blackface, she sang songs then popular with minstrels; the audience whistled and called for more. Later, waiting for the el to ride downtown, she saw a man who had been pointed out to her as a top booking agent. Sophie asked him if he would book her act. He did—and then began her climb to stage stardom.

The agent, Joe Wood, provided Sophie with a dress, valued at $25, to be paid for $1 per week, and she quit her well-paying job at the German Village to tour on a small-time circuit for $15 weekly. "You'll have to black up," Wood told her. She was billed as "World Renowned Coon Shouter."

MONTHS OF hard work and loneliness followed, but Sophie knew she was on her way now. Under Wood's guidance, she played clubs, conventions, Sunday shows and "small time" houses early and late. Her salary went to $25 weekly, then $35. And always, though she did her own laundry—and there was a lot of it, because of the blackface—$5 or more per week went home to Mama. Next, $40 weekly for Tony Pastor, and then a $50-a-week season's contract with Manchester and Hill's burlesque wheel. From this stern and knowing school, while the troupe was playing Holyoke, Mass., Marc Klaw of Klaw and Erlanger picked her for the 1909 Ziegfeld Follies at $100 a week.

Jealously stalked the wings of the 1909 Follies after its opening in Atlantic City and Sophie not only lost her songs—"It's Moving Day Down in Jungle Town" and Irving Berlin's new hit, "The Right Church but the Wrong Pew"—but her job as well after the show hit New York. Then, to top her misery, she lost her voice temporarily.

Ready to work again after four weeks of idleness, she played a benefit—no money, but she had been topped off that William Morris, then opening his circuit of American music halls, would be there. He booked Sophie for his Ace House in New York and there began a friendship and business association that lasted through Morris's life and continues to the present with the William Morris office.

VAUDEVILLE THEN was in its heyday and within a year on the big-time "two a day" Miss Sophie Tucker was being billed as an "extra added attraction." An ingenious press agent in Chicago—Jack Lait—(this was 1910) dubbed her "The Mary Garden of Ragtime." That year, too, she initiated her famed "talking songs" like "There's Company in the Parlor, Girls, Come on Down," and she also made her first phonograph records—$1,000 for a set of 10 sides. Rather than accept the security of a series of payments, however, Sophie wrote to Thomas Edison asking for—and receiving—a lump sum with which she purchased a home for her parents. That got Mama out of the kitchen!

Now definitely a headliner, Sophie branched out. Pantages circuit—$250 and then $500 per week; the Palace in New York—1914 — ("biggest hit ever made in this house by a single woman" one reviewer wrote); her own band combination—she the "Queen of Jazz" with her "Five Kings of Syncopation"—$1,500 weekly; Reisenweber's here as World War I ended and a new era in New York night life began; her first of many trips abroad and instantaneous success in London; "Sophie Tucker's Playground" on 52nd St. near Broadway at the peak of the prohibiton era; the Palace again (1928) where she first sang "I'm the Last of the Red Hot Mamas," which Jack Yellen had written especially for her. Success and more success, saddened only by the deaths of her father and mother. Louis Tuck had died years earlier.

MOVIES, RADIO, more long-run stage and night-club engagements here and abroad, and now television have rounded out Sophie's 50 years of entertaining, and "the grand old gal of show business" still packs them in wherever she sings, whether at El Rancho in Las Vegas, the Roosevelt in New Orleans, the Cave Club in Vancouver, the Wolhurst Club in Denver or the Fairmont in San Francisco where, only last winter, a San Francisco chronicler wrote of her:

"Her Venetian room opening was what you might expect—the furtive tears in older eyes, the whole wonderful nonsense and nostalgia of show business; the gay, bawdy and sandpaper rasp monologues so inseparably hers; the parade of San Francisco names who 'knew her when,' and an idolatrous younger set looking up, not backward. Sophie dripping furs, beads, orchids, sequins, quips; Sophie in a platinum poodle cut, and about as inconspicuous as the Queen Mary heaving into her pier."

Which brings to mind the headline, "Sophie Tucker Rides the Stage Like a Battleship," on Cecil Wilson's coverage in the London Daily Mail of her return to the Palladium, April 22, 1952.

"She rode the stage like a blonde and pink battleship studded with diamonds," Wilson wrote. "She played on the house like an orchestra. She could command tears with a sigh, laughter with a wink. She interlarded her sauciest lyrics with homilies on the importance of making the best of life, being kind to one's fellows, and keeping young with love. As she summed it up in one of the rhymed couplets with which she linked her songs: 'with all my sauce and spice I dish out a lot of good advice'."

THAT COUPLET could well be Sophie Tucker's credo. Characteristically, she has requested that next Sunday's testimonial dinner at the Waldorf be turned into a huge charity affair. Sponsored by the Jewish Theatrical Guild of America, those benefiting will be the guild itself and seven other theatrical charity funds—the Actors Fund of America, the Will Rogers Memorial Hospital, the Motion Picture Relief Fund, the American Guild of Variety Artists, and the Catholic, the Episcopal and the Negro actors guilds.

As to her own success in show business, Sophie, speaking briefly at a luncheon tendered her by the Friars Club here last week, said:

"No one should delude himself into thinking he alone is responsible for his success; it is God alone who runs the big booking office upstairs."

"You've got to have love to be healthy" has long been one of Sophie's favorite songs, and, as she celebrates her golden jubilee in the entertainment world, her legions of admirers will be hoping that the last and best of the Red Hot Mamas will keep healthy and happy for many years to come.

In Rockefeller Park in Cleveland, a city made up of peoples from many lands, this Hungarian Garden is one of the 18 Cultural Gardens sponsored by nationality groups and dedicated to the cultures represented by them and to peace. The first of these gardens, the Shakespeare Garden, was built in 1916. Among this group of Cultural Gardens are the English, Polish, German, Hebrew, Italian, Lithuanian, Slovak, Czech, Irish, Ukrainian, and American Colonial gardens. In all cases these are virtual reproductions of gardens from the native countries of the sponsoring groups. Visitors by the thousand each year journey to the Cleveland Cultural Gardens throughout the summer growing season.

Philosophy Similar to Ike's

New Justice Is Regarded as a 'Liberal'

By MORRIE LANDSBERG

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — In naming Earl Warren to the Supreme Court, President Eisenhower picked a man whose political philosophy seems to follow the middle-of-the-road course advocated by Eisenhower himself.

Warren, 62, is and always has been a Republican. Yet he won election as governor of California three times with strong backing from registered Democrats who predominate in his state. And former President Truman once said of him:

"He's really a Democrat and doesn't know it."

Warren has, indeed, often seemed to be closer to the Truman wing of the Democratic Party than to the conservative kind of Republicanism. A declared friend of "social progress," he outraged many California Republicans by pushing repeatedly — and unsuccessfully—for a state compulsory health insurance program.

Yet he was outspoken in praise of the Supreme Court decision, which upset Truman's 1952 seizure of the steel industry. Long before that he opposed Franklin D. Roosevelt's plan to enlarge the Supreme Court. And, as a coastal state governor, he favored—like Eisenhower and unlike Truman—state ownership of offshore submerged lands.

Warren calls himself a liberal or progressive Republican.

He once declared in a speech: "I am convinced the American people are not Socialists and will not tolerate Socialist government, but they are definitely committed to social progress."

What sort of man is Earl Warren?

Millions came to know him in 1948, when he was the unsuccessful Republican candidate for vice president, as a genial, 6-feet-1 westerner with an unusually appealing family — including three photogenic daughters.

Staff members know him as a firm and exacting boss but a fair and considerate one.

Few people remember the self-confident Warren of today as a young lawyer who used to be "scared to death," as he puts it, of appearing in court.

"I'd get on a street car and I would be so tense I'd hope the car would be wrecked on the way to the courthouse," Warren has told an associate.

The Warren family, undoubtedly a great political as well as personal asset, became nationally known during the Republican National Convention of 1948, where daughters Virginia, Dorothy and Nina—now 24, 22 and 19 respectively—delighted the galleries and the photographers. Nina (Honey Bear) was [illegible] in 1950 but [illegible]

The other children are James, 34, Earl Jr., 23, and Robert, 18. James was a small boy when his widowed mother, Mrs. Nina Palmquist Meyers, married Warren in 1925. The family always has been closely knit and Warren found time to read aloud to the children when they were young.

Warren tried for top place on the GOP ticket in 1948 but settled for the vice presidential nomination. With New York Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, who defeated him for the presidential nomination, he was bowled over in the surprise election victory of Truman and Alben W. Barkley.

Again in 1952 Warren was in the running but the race soon turned into a contest between Eisenhower and the late Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio. Warren helped to swing the nomination to Eisenhower by siding with him in the disputed delegate contests that foreshadowed Taft's ultimate defeat.

Warren was born in Los Angeles, the son of a railway car repairman who came to this country from Norway as a child. The future governor's mother died when he was 40. His father was beaten to death as he sat alone in his living room in 1938. The slaying never has been solved.

Warren went into private law practice upon graduation from the University of California. In World War I he served as an infantry lieutenant and afterward became a deputy district attorney of Alameda County—mainly, he says, to gain trial experience.

That was 34 years ago. Warren has been a public official ever since.

This wasn't, he says, the way he planned it — he has always thought of himself primarily as a lawyer.

Warren never has been a judge himself, though as governor he has named about half the judges in his state's 58 counties. He voices pride that none of the more than 10,000 bills he has signed has been successfully challenged in the courts—"leastwise none of the major laws."

Senators Shy of T-H Fight

2 GOP Seats on Labor Committee Go Begging

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two Republican places on the Senate Labor Committee are going begging, apparently because GOP senators are reluctant to get directly involved in any new Taft-Hartley law controversy.

President Eisenhower, meanwhile, had opportunity to comment at his news conference today on former Secretary of Labor Martin Durkin's assertion the President broke his word on supporting Taft-Hartley law changes.

The White House has denied there was any agreemeent, but there has been no direct comment from the President thus far. Eisenhower also faced possible questioning on the choice of a successor to Durkin, who resigned Sept. 10.

The vacancies on the Senate Labor Committee to be filled when Congress meets again include those caused by the death of Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) and the expected transfer of Sen. Aiken (R-Vt) to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Chairman H. Alexander Smith (R-NJ) conceded in an interview he is having trouble lining up Republicans to fill out the usual 7-6 margin of his party over the Democrats on the labor group.

"Several senators said they would like to serve, but they don't want to change their present committee assignments," Smith said. "I'm afraid some of them think that membership on the committee might be a political liability.

"I don't agree with that viewpoint, because I believe the Republicans have widespread support [illegible] even if the leaders are against us."

In any event, some Republicans expect a bruising political battle with the Democrats and GOP senators who will be running for reelection next year were said to be particularly anxious to avoid direct involvement.

Republicans most discussed as possible appointees to the committee include Senators Barrett of Wyoming, Bush of Connecticut, Payne of Maine, Kuchel of California and Cooper of Kentucky.

But in the end the Conference of All GOP Senators may have to take matters into its own hands and order members assigned to the two vacancies.

Scholarship Fund Drive Will Begin Next Week

UPPER SANDUSKY—Ohio University's Alumni Sesquicentennial Scholarship Fund drive will start next week, Oct. 4 to 10, in Wyandot and Crawford counties.

Robert W. Morrison of Bucyrus is chairman of the two-county campaign. Goal of the nationwide drive among Ohio University alumni is $150,000, to be presented to the university in 1954 as a feature of the 150th anniversary of the school's founding.

Two Wyandot County men assisting in the campaign are Charles A. Naus, Upper Sandusky, and John A. Greet, Carey.

The National Geographic Society says the first storm windows in America are believed to be those at Monticello, Thomas Jefferson's home.

Wilson Doubts Russians Plan Conflict Now

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense Wilson says he doubts the Russians will start a war right now, but at a news conference he steered cautiously away from any prediction of a big slash soon in military spending.

In a separate discussion, Val Peterson, civil defense administrator, said Russia "has enough atomic bombs to drop one or more on every major American city at the same time"—and that such an attack could cause up to 22 million casualties.

Wilson was bombarded at his conference Tuesday with questions about Soviet ability to make hydrogen bombs in quantity and any related reshaping of U. S. fiscal and defense plans.

Wilson agreed with one newsman that any early reduction to 33 or 34 billions in defense spending, now running between 42 and 43 billion dollars a year, would involve cutting operating, combat forces.

He said he thought the budget of his department for the fiscal year beginning July 1 would probably be "something less than 43 billion dollars" and that newsmen were "getting hot" when they questioned him about a 40-billion figure.

Lost Art Needs Reviving

Conversation Is Hurt by Artificiality

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Everybody knows the art of conversation is dying in America, but nobody does anything about it except talk . . . talk . . .talk.

That's no help. Mere talking doesn't make a conversation, as every wife knows.

Television today is often blamed for throttling conversation. It is the other way around. People turn in desperation to the TV screen to escape the boredom of meaningless geese gabble that starts from nothing and gets nowhere.

What is really destroying conversation is the fact everybody is trying hard to become a brilliant conversationalist—and going about it in exactly the wrong way.

The slogan of America's period of rugged individualism was 'Be Yourself." And most everybody was himself—and a real individual who prided himself on his individuality. He meant what he said, and said what he meant.

Today too many people would rather be popular than right. They have the idea that they can be popular and successful only if they don't act like themselves. They are caught in a great herd self-improvement campaign. They all try to be like somebody else.

But they merely end up looking and acting like each other—like movie starlets, who wear the same mask of glamor and only their own mothers could tell them apart, or would want to. Somewhere along the way they often lose their own personality in exchange for that of a puppet.

When it comes to improving their conversation, they buy a $3.50 book (marked down to 98 cents) entitled, "You Can Hold Them Spellbound, or How to Gab Your Way From the Gutter to the Stars."

They all study the three great secrets: (1) The best listener is the best conversationalist; (2) get the other fellow to talking about himself; and (3) don't say anything that might hurt anybody's feelings.

When you get caught in a roomful of people all trying at the same time to use these three keys to conversational success on each other—well, mister, the cobwebs gather early. It goes like this:

"What did you say?" "Oh, I didn't say anything, I thought you were going to say something." "Well, sure been a nice day—now tell me something about yourself." "Oh, no, you tell me about yourself. You look so interesting."

And nobody in the crowd would dare even to criticize cancer, because, after all, it hits a lot of nice people. Maybe somebody in the room secretly likes cancer, and you wouldn't want to make him feel bad, would you?

Everybody feels it's safer and makes him more popular to converse in platitudes in these latitudes. But each just finds the other less worth ever wanting to see again.

I haven't met him, but I hear the most popular man in town—hostesses fight for him—is a crotchety, uncouth fellow who boasts he never read a book, scratches himself in public, uses a toothpick at the table, and opens a conversation by booming out some such remark as:

"The only sensible way to solve poverty is to start hanging poor people again. That's what makes poverty, isn't it—poor people?"

Well, in five minutes the party is in an uproar. Everybody is forgetting his book, and saying "shut up. Now you listen to me." They go from argument to argument, and everybody enjoys a wonderful conversation. Those who agree end up buddies, and hate everybody else—and that's the way it should be.

"I can't see why you invited a man who says such stupid things," a guest says when the cause of the hubbub bows out after hurling a final insult. And the hostess replies:

"Because he says them out loud."

But fellows like this are rare. Most conversations languish because one gent is afraid to give his own opinions because he is politely cocking both ears to be sure and impress another gent who never had anything in his life worth saying, and wouldn't have the courage to say it if he did.

Of course, there are all sorts of angles to this question, and I could be wrong, and anyway I was just thinking out loud. Let's talk about you. What do you think of—

Oops! See what I mean? I read that book, too.

Galion Church Plans To Mark Anniversary

Plans are under way at Galion for a commemoration with both religious and civic significance, which will be held when members and friends of St. Joseph's Catholic Church observe the one hundredth anniversary of the parish, Nov. 1.

Religious observance will be celebrated in the morning at the church with Bishop George Rehring of Toledo offering a Solemn Pontifical Mass at the main altar. Visiting church dignitaries and diocesan priests and nuns will be present.

In the evening, a civic observance will be celebrated in St. Joseph's School auditorium, with an appropriate program paying tribute to "a century of religious and civic achievement." First established in 1853, as a mission, the parish was under direction of the resident priest from Shelby settlement. The present church was constructed in 1890. Details of a complete program of events for the centennial are in process of development.

It is believed that all dogs are descendants of the common wolf.

Bucyrians Repeat Vows In Afternoon Service

BUCYRUS — Miss Betty Langford and Kenneth G. Layer, both of Bucyrus, exchanged nupual vows in a ceremony Sunday afternoon in St. Paul's Lutheran Church at nearby North Robinson. The double ring ceremony was read by the Rev. Harold R. Shank, church pastor.

Miss Gladys Brown was maid of honor and Paul Katterhenrich, Bucyrus, best man. Ushers were Cornelius Staton, a brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Paul Burwell, an uncle of the bride. Following the ceremony a reception for 75 guests was held in the church.

Mrs. Layer is a granddaughter of Mrs. Frank Love of North Robinson. She is a 1951 graduate of North Robinson High School and has been employed at Clady's Drug Store here. Mr. Layer, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Layer is stationed with the air force at Panama City, Fla., where the couple will live.

More dirt has been moved to bury pipe lines, most of which carry oil or its products, than that required to dig all the canals used since the beginning of time.

LADDER LOSS

BETHLEHEM, Conn. (UP) —An unidentified youth attending a church bazaar was fascinated by an old stepladder and bought it for 50 cents. Later, it was discovered that it belonged to one of the attendants and was an unusual family heirloom, worth considerable money. She had bought it to the bazaar to exhibit it.

Neglected in Soviet Economy

Russia Years Behind in Housing, Road Building

Editor's Note—Here is a revealing look into Soviet construction methods—for both buildings and roads. It is given by an AP correspondent who spent nine years in the Soviet Union. This is the fourth in a series.

By TOM WHITNEY

LONDON (AP)—I was out for a walk in Moscow one autumn night a few years ago. My meditations were interrupted by a roar and a crash. Across the street a cloud of dust and plaster arose. People ran from all directions.

It was easy to see what had happened. A fine Soviet building—fine by Soviet standards—stood opposite me. Three floors up there used to be a balcony. The balcony had simply fallen off the front of the building.

One does not have to be an expert to realize that most of the buildings are poorly constructed and that almost the whole construction industry is inefficient and antiquated. You can see this in watching new buildings go up. Or you can walk up to an older building and start guessing when it was built. An American might guess 50 years, the cornerstone will show it was erected eight or maybe 15 years ago. But it already looks old. The work was poor. The building is dirty.

Some buildings in Moscow look years old even before they are finished.

Most are built of brick. But the builders do not have facing brick. Instead they cover over the surface with plaster.

The plaster sometimes starts falling off before the building is even finished. Even when it stays on it does not look good. It is usually painted with some sort of plaster paint—often in a pastel shade. This surface collects the dirt. Within a few months it looks bad.

There are many brick buildings which were intended to have a plaster facing but never got it. They look even worse.

Soviet architectural design is not generally good. Architects tend to put a lot of ornated decoration—gingerbread—on buildings. Most of this is poorly conceived, almost all of it poorly executed.

Nevertheless, there has been considerable improvement in the quality of work in the postwar years. A good many steel frame structures are going up. Many are using reinforced concrete block for walls. New ceramic facing materials have been used heretofore. There has been emphasis on simplicity of design in the interests of economy. The extensive use of construction machinery has lowered building costs.

All these are healthy tendencies but the Russians have a long way to go. I lived in an apartment house completed in 1951 with 72 apartments for foreigners.

Much space was wasted. In our apartment a long corridor could have been used to enlarge the three small rooms. No central hot water system was provided. The gas and water pipes were partly exposed; so was some of the wiring. The double windows were poorly fitted, and a draft came through them.

There were no wall closets, necessitating the purchase of expensive wardrobes. The children had no playground. There was no laundry room. The heat in some of the apartments was inadequate. Sometimes the elevator did not work. For weeks the ambassador, the minister, the counselor, the first secretaries, the second secretaries, the attaches, the secretary archivists, the military attaches and all the rest trouped up to their work. When I left Moscow this elevator was still one of the more uncertain things in Moscow.

Almost all new houses built outside cities are still log cabins, the same as houses built in Russia 600 years ago. They are well built in the sense that the pine logs are carefully fitted. In between the logs there is moss insulation. They are good warm homes for the Russian winter.

But they are small and just think of the waste of good wood in them! Each log cabin must have enough to make three fairly large homes if the wood were sawed.

Why is the Soviet building industry so antiquated, inefficient and costly to boot? For one thing, the government does not give the building industry enough attention. It is not putting its best brains and executives to work in this field. Also, construction workers are among the worst paid in the country.

Is construction work on industrial enterprises as bad as that on Moscow housing" I suspect that it is not much better.

One of Russia's greatest curses always has been—and still is—lack of roads.

The statistics on hard-surfaced highways are a state secret. But it is possible to estimate that the entire Soviet Union—one sixth of the world's land surface—has fewer macadam, concrete and even cobblestone motor roads outside cities than any average-sized state of the United States.

There are a few more or less modern motor highways. Such, for example, are the highways from Moscow west to Minsk (built before the war) which has for a considerable part of its distance from four to six lanes, and also that from Moscow south to the Crimea (built since the war).

Once off these few main arteries, one makes the acquaintance of the Russian dirt roads. Even when the weather is dry they are frequently impassable for a passenger car because of deep ruts and holes. When they are wet one can within a few seconds go up to an axle in the mud.

Such dirt roads are only passable for trucks with high clearance—and not always for them.

It is difficult to see how Russia can get along with such a road system.

Soviet industry turns out quite decent passenger cars and trucks. Soviet trucks particularly seem to be sturdy and practical vehicles.

Private passenger car ownership is increasing even though the numbers of private car owners are but a drop in the bucket of the potential market.

There may be as many as three million trucks and passenger cars.

On so few good roads!

Sooner or later, of course, the government will find transport is such a bottleneck that something take decades to build a highway system comparable to that of the will have to be done about it. Once they get started it would United States. And Russia is much bigger than the United States in total area and has a larger population.

Nor will road building in Russia be easy, despite the generally level country. Stone will have to be brought for long distances. There are relatively few quarries in the most heavily populated areas of European Russia. There seems to be a shortage even of gravel.

Three out of five fatal traffic accidents occur at night, although there is less traffic at night.

Ex-Crestline Resident Honored With Shower

Special to The Star

CRESTLINE — A unique party was held recently in honor of Miss Rita Margaret Meyers, daughter of W. J. Meyers of Crestline and the late Mrs. Meyers, when Mrs. Richard Detwiler entertained at a linen shower. Both Miss Meyers and her fiance, Harold B. Dougherty reside in San Francisco, Calif.

The bride-elect's gifts were placed a bridal doll and attendants. A telegram unwrapped on a table centered with phone call was made to the honored guest in San Francisco, Calif. She was told of the shower and spoke briefly with each guest. The gifts were then wrapped individually and sent to Miss Meyers. A thank-you telegram was later received from the honor guest.

Miss Meyers will become Mrs. Harold Dougherty on Oct. 10 at a wedding ceremony in St. Mary's Catholic Church, San Francisco. Mr. Dougherty is the son of Raymond E. Dougherty of Long Beach, Calif.

The Gumps — By Gus Edson

THIS IS A REMINDER OF THE WONDERFUL DAYS WHEN WE WERE GOING STEADY, JANE.
SAM, DO YOU REALLY THINK THAT THINGS WERE WONDERFUL THEN?
I SURE DO.. AND I'VE BEEN TRYING TO THINK HOW THAT HAPPY STATE OF AFFAIRS EVER FELL APART.
I GUESS THE ANSWER IS THAT OLD FRENCH SAYING, "C'EST LA GUERRE."
YES, THE WAR BROKE US UP.. BUT WHY?
YOU WENT INTO THE SERVICE WITHOUT GIVING ME THE SLIGHTEST IDEA OF WHERE I STOOD.

I AM IN FAVOR OF OUR FLYING SQUAD RUSHING THE JAIL AND RELEASING THE SOVIET AGENT!
I AGREE! THE LOCAL POPULACE IS BORED WITH OUR CAMPAIGN FOR THE YANKEES TO GO HOME!
BUT WE WOULD HAVE TO DEMONSTRATE ELSEWHERE TO LURE POLICE AWAY FROM THE JAIL!
THEN LET US DO IT! TALK! TALK! TALK! SOME PEOPLE ARE ALWAYS WANTING TO DISCUSS THINGS INSTEAD OF LEAVING DECISIONS UP TO THEIR SUPERIOR COMRADES!
MEANWHILE...
AND THIS PART OF THE PRISON WAS BUILT IN THE SEVENTEENTH CENTURY!
WELL, I DO DECLARE!
HOLLEE! WHY DO YOU SHOUT?
I DO DECLARE!
I HEAR YOU, REBEL! LOUD AND CLEAR!
